WHOLESALE INDEX UP MORE SLOWLY AS FOOD DECLINES

Overall July Rise Is 0.3%-Surge in Nonfarm Prices May Warn of Inflation

By EILEEN SHANAHAN Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 Wholesale prices, taken as a group, rose only three-tenths of 1 percent in July, their smallest rise since March. But other aspects of the Labor Departmen's Wholesale Price Index contained warnings that the inflation rate might worsen somewhat in the future.

The relatively small increase in the overall index occurred because the prices of farm products actually declined by percent, as did prices of procssed foods and feeds, which went down nine-tenths of 1 ercent.

Food and feed prices are inherently more variable than the prices of most other products, because of weather factors and because their markets ents Raise City's Cash Flow are less structured.

Moslem Defeat Is Expected to Delay a Settlement of 16-Month Crisis

By IHSAN A. HIJAZI ecial to The New York Times BEIRUT, Lebanon, Aug. 12-Right-wing Christians an-nounced today that the Palestinian camp of Tell Zaatar had fallen to their forces, which had the camp under siege aince mid-June.

Palestinian sources quoted by a left-wing radio station as having said that hand-to-hand fighting was still. going on inside the camp.

Witnesses reported that thousands of civilians were streaming out of Tell Zaatar and surrendering to right-wing forces. Women and children were crying while old men stumbled over rubble-strewn streets carrying small bundles of belongings, the witnesses said, and added that they had seen few men of fighting age leaving the. camp. They reported that they had seen the bodies of 10 young men at the entrance of the NEAR CAPE TOWN Camp.

Citroën, Gérard Gasson, a school teacher, had to retain a lawyer to defend him against charges of involuntary injury to two men-the engineer and his assistant had broken ribs-and trespassing on railroad property. The driver was protected by a policy issued by the School Teachers' Cooperative Insurance against Car Accidents. He had bought the coverage for the equivalent of $33. According to Paul Marcus, who runs the cooperative, the bulk of the claim will be for worth $30,000 to $40,000 each. He said the French railroads would present bills for all repair work, as well crease of $5. as for damages due to loss of traffic. An authority that controls the canal, Mr. Marcus said, would be presenting its own claim, as would a barge owners' association. It will ask a minimum of $20,000 because 40 barges were immo-bilized while the canal was being cleared.

The Society of Bar-le-Duc Anglers has presented a claim for more than 300 pounds of killed fish, including about 100 pounds of roaches carplike northern European fish-tbat survived the beer and soup, but not the dredging. Those who had bought the beer and soup will require compensation for temporarily lost business, according to Mr. Marcus, and so will those who were to receive other cargo on the train.

Reagan Resists Financial Disclosure

Position in Contrast to That of Rivals for Presidency

By NICHOLAS M. HORROCK Special to The New York Times

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 12-Ronald Reagan, now in the fical stretch of his party's nominating process, continues to resist the post-Watergate pressure on Presidential candidates to make broad disclosures of their personal financial af-

Last February he issued a brief statement that set his net worth at $1,455,571 and disclosed that his 1975 earnings. after leaving office as governor of California, were $282,253.

These figures alone make Mr. Reagan a richer man than President Ford, Mr. Reagan's leading rival for the Republican nomination, or Jimmy Carter or Senator Walter F. By DOUGLAS E. KNEELAND Special to The New York Times CALUMET ;" CITY, IIL, election as a delegate to the Republican National Conven-tion, he insists, it never crossed his mind that he would have any very weighty decisions to make in Kansas City next week as to who his party's candidate for President would be

He ran as "uncommitted," as did the three other win-ning delegates in the third Congressional District, which embraces this close-in suburb south of Chicago on the Indi-ana line. But, Mr. Scannell recalled in an interview:

"At that particular time, there was no indication that it was going to be any more than nominating an incum-bent President. I thought I . was just going to go down there and sit by the pool and then on Wednesday night I would go to the hall and vote for President Ford."

That's not the way it turned out. With the nomimating vote scheduled for next Wednesday night, Mr. Ford and his challenger, Ronald Reagan, the former Gover-nor of California, are still locked in a tight strugge for a majority of the 2,259 dele-And as the day of decision has grown closer, Mr. Scan-nell, a tall, portly, 52-year-old Chicago lawyer, has found himself thinking more and more seriously about his role as one of the shrinking handful of uncommitted delegates who may control the outcome.

To Choose at Convention.

At this point. The New York Times's national delegate count gives Mr. Ford 1,115 votes, 15 short of the number needed for nomination, and Mr. Reagan 1,033. It lists 111 as still uncommitted. Mr. Scannell may not be typical of the scattering of uncommitted delegates from around the country, or even of the eight The Times records in that category from

His Role as One of the Uncommitted

The New York Time William F. Scannell

Illinois, where 8I have de-clared for Mr. Ford and 12 for Mr. Reagan.

But he is a adamant in de-claring that he will withhold his judgment until the last

"I'll go out to the conventioo and make the decision as the facts warrant it-at the convention," he said

Actually, Mr. Scannell sees himself as cast in an unlikely part. Although he has been the Republican state central committeeman from his district for 20 years and once served five years as secretary of the Illinois Republican Party, he has never attended a national convention before.

"I never really felt like going," he explained, "What for?"

Nor did he have any par-ticular desire to go this time. But, he said, a meeting to choose delegate nominees was so sparsely attended and so few persons were interested in running that he was asked to put his name on the ballot and to choose the other candidates.

He and his slate were easily elected as uncommitted delegates and then suddenly found themselves caoght up in the fierce battle for the nomination. Two of the four delegates from the district have since come out for President Ford, but Mr. Scan-oell and Diane Y. Carison, a state central committeewoman, have climg to their uncommitted status.

Ford Drive 'Mismanaged'

As a loyal party man, Mr. Scanoell acknowledges that he likes President Ford and feels that his performance in the White House has earned him the right to run, but he quickly adds that the President's mahility to wrap up the nomination by now has led him to increasing doubts that Mr. Ford can defeat Jimmy Carter, the Democratic candidate. Over drinks with Mrs. Carlson at a local motel bar, he talked openly about his dilemma. "The thing that disturbs me really." he said, "is that Ford has been an able President-probably the best one we've had in years-but his campaign has been so mismanaged"

Both delegates said that they were troubled because Mr. Ford had not announced who his running mate would) be after Mr. Reagan chose Senator Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania.

"He's got to be completely honest with the American people," he said. "He knows who his Vice President is going to be. He might as well go ahead and say who it is." Despite reports around the country of unceasing efforts by the Ford and Reagan campaign organizations to win over uncommitted delegates, Mr. Scannell and Mrs. Carl-son denied that they had been under any real pressure from either side. Neither, in fact, has had calls from the candidates themselves, as have some delegates. "She really turned me off quick. She said it was a terrible thing the party was doing to the President and that we should all be out supporting the President. Whose President? I didn't say that to her, but whose President is she. talking about-mine or the guy's across the street?"

Meanwhile, Mr. Carter and Governor Brown discussed politics and the approaching na-tional campaign, which is slated to begin for the Demo-crats on Labor Day at an as yet undetermined site. Mr. Carter's day began with the arrival of his running mate and Jeno Paulucci, general chairman of the Italian-American Foundation Bicentennial dinner scheduled for Sept. 16 in Washington.

Asked if Mr. Panlucci had mentioned his reference to "Eye-talians," in his acceptance speech in New York last month, Mr. Carter said it had been a slip of the tongue.

"I know how to pronounce it," he said. Mr. Paulneci smiled, hnt not quite as broadly as Mr Carter. Other Names on List

Also included in his list n persons he said were "dumped" by Mr. Ford into important positions were Richard Roudebush, defeated in a Senate race in Indiana, then eppointed to the Veterans Administration; Jack Eckerd, loser in a Florida Senate race and now, the head of the oGvernment Services Administration, and Marlow Cook, unsuccessful in a Senate race in Kentucky and appointed hy Mr. Ford as director of the Legal Services Corporation. The Governor, in his speech yesterday, also had described "faithful political partisans." He identiifed them today as Dean Burch, former chairman of the Republican National Committee and now chairman of the Federal Communications Commission; Jerry Thomas, director of the Florida Conservative Union and now Under Secretary of the Treasury; Charlotte Reid, a Republican representative who is nnw a Federal Communications Commission commissioner; and Warreo Rudman, a Republican state attorney general who is now chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Sometimes a Combination

The lines between these methods can start to blur rapidly. Often they are used in combination. At the School for Strings, for instance, two lessons a week of Suzuki are complemented once a week by Dalcroze. At the respected Diller-Quaile school, Bob Fraley, the director, said, "We take the best elements of all the approaches — the important thing is to suit the approach to the child not the child to the approach." That tonches on what mn-sic educators often cite as a more important factor than method—the teacher. "A problem can be simply a matter of personalities," Clyde Keutzer, director of the Turtle Bay Music School, said. When child and teacher don't mesh, the educators say, parents should not be fimid about requesting a change. However, there is a difference of opinion on bow long to wait for possible improvement. Some say a few sessions, others a few months.

A difficulty for parents in choosing a teacher or school is that there is little in the way of accreditation for music teachers outside of the public schools (Dalcroze is one exception; the school certifies its graduates). Sheila Keats, a Suzuki teacher, complained that there are a lot of people who take a two-day work-sbop and say. conceived in Milan is manufactured elsewhere --- from Glasgow to Tokyo

For another, although de-signers are still toying with technology and have introduced a number of ingenious improvements, some architects bave now tired of play-ing around with plastics. (The higher pricing of petro-chemicals since the 1973 oil crisis has something to do with it too.) And they have returned to such basic materials as wood, metal and even, in one case, to textiles, fashioning furniture that is mostly fabric.

Mario Bellini, that genius with machines whose name is a byword in factories in Milan and now from Scotland to Japan, will soon be better known to Americans too. That's because Mr. Bellini is responsible for a new cassette deck that Yamaha is producing in Japan. The ar-chitect has also designed the sports-car siyled, low-slung and sleek Olivetti typewriter that is the first electric portable to boast interchangeable typing elements. It's made in Glasgow.

Glasgow. The typing elements—golf-ball shaped to pop easily in and out—come in pica and elite izes and four styles each are available. The typewriter, an 18-pound wonder (241/2 pounds in its case), also uses ribbon cartridges for uses ribbon cartridges for ease of handling. But the Olivettl Lexicon 82, in stores since spring at $300, ntay be upstaged by Thanksgiving. That's because the Lexicon 83, its successor, will then be available. And will then be available. And from reaction to the manu-facturer's, indeed the world's, first all-black portable since Model-T styling went out with the World War II, the newer jet-toned model may well bring black back. Both Olivettis are being manufactured in new facilities in Scotland, a first for this manufacturer. And although the Italian producer credits the change to "ex-pansion," others view such moves by manufacturers as a result of continuing political and production problems plaguing the Italian industrial scene.

"When you ship things," observed Massimo Vignelli, the New York-based Italian graphics designer, citing another problem, "you ship a lot of air. Once Italian manufacturers realized that, they decided it made a lot of sense to choose production facilities that were closer to the delivery points."

They did, and soon Mr. Vignelli and Lella Vignelli, be also made in Quebec. The shelving system incorporates, possibly for the first time, a rodlike joint that bas dowel like and tooth like prongs that fit neatly into the honeycomb edges of the shelves and side panels. "The rods," Mr. Beylerian ex-plained "are like centipedes and each projection is an exact fit in the panels it joins." By producing the sys-tem here he will cut costs by about one third. The upholstery production will save, he said, about 20 percent or more for shoppers.

Meanwhile back in Italy many designers and furniture manufacturers are taking a hard look at their designs, materials and manufacturing techniques. The "Sit Down" collection introduced here by Atelier International, 595 Madison Avenue, is, for instance, a tour de force of wit and technology by the witti-est of all Italian designers-Gaetano Pesce. The ottoman, chairs and sofa (from about $650 to $1,500) look as though they are quilt-covered lumpy hand-me-downs. But, in fact, they are quilt-covered conceptions made by tossing the polypropylene blankets into the molding equipment. Then the polyurethane foam is injected into the cupped cavity and each design emerges different from every other one.

And B. & B. another Italian producer has returned to wood furniture in a collection by Afra and Tobia tion by Aira and 1001a Scarpa that echoes—but not slavishly—the Art Nouveau period. The designs, all on view at B. & B. America's showroom, 745 Fifth Avenue, are extraordinary in their surface treatments, incorpo-rating laminated effects that could be mistakeo for marquetry or Italian intarsia, "We believe it's the first time in years that furniture manufacturers anywhere have approached wood with any degree of seriousness, Ed Epstein, president of B.&B. here said. If it is, there's much to appreciete and some work for all manufacturers interested in reducing prices: These chairs are from $500 to $750; tables are $1,200 to $1,520 and the king-sized bed is $2,000-plus.

Chris Evert and All That Money

Standing on the 107th floor with New Jersey behind her. and New York Harbor on her right, Chris Evert announced plans for a series of women's tennis tournaments backed by the Colgate-Palmolive Company with $300,000 in prize money, in addition to a $200,000 Colgate Inaugural in Palm Springs, Calif., in October, $600,000 in year-end bonuses will be distributed to top players ranked by a point system keyed to major championships around the world. The purse for the Inaugural is the richest in women's tennis so far,

Chris said, and the bonuses will help the girls achieve dollar parity with men. She Sports was saying this at a news conference in the of World Trade Center on the floor occupied The Times by the posh new restaurant called Windows on the World. Through the windows on ber right, the waters of the harbor spread misty-blue to the Vertazano-Narrows Bridge, and in the foreground were Ellis Island, Governor's Island and the Statue of Women's Liberty. The Wimbledon and United States Open champion is hig for women's liberty but not so aggressive about it as Billie Jean King. Later at lunch Chris was asked about her reported statement at Wimbledon that she wouldn't be back next year unless prize money for women matched the men's loot. "Parity," she said. "If all the women stay away, I will, too. But if the others play, I'm not going to not defend the championship."

This was candid of the lady but tactically unwise. It was pointed out that it was poor strategy to threaten a boycott and admit at the same time that she might not make the threat good. She said no, she had never meant to threaten a one woman boycott; she had been speaking for the whole sorority, and any action would have to be a group action.

Dr. Richards's Genes

At the news conference she bad been asked whether Dr. Repee Richards would be eligible for the international series. Dr. Richards used to be Dr. Richard Raskind, Since undergoing surgery she has won a women's tournament in La Joila, Calif. As president of the Women's Tennis Association, Chris was prepared to enswer the question, but she was cut off by Jerry Diamond, the W.T.A. press agent, who said the decision on Dr. Richards was a policy matter that would be handled by the W.T.A. and Dr. Richards would have to undergo genetic tests to prove she was a woman. Now at hinch he was saying the same thing all over.

"She may legally be a woman," he was saying, "but genetically it could be different. Take a player 5 feet 8 weighing 150 pounds with female genes and one 5 feet 8 and 150 pounds with male genes, the one with male genes will be stronger."

If he was speaking for the W.T.A., then the parity Chris and her sisters talk about is parity in the bank, not on the court. Although Margaret Court and Billie Jean didn't draw the line against Bobby Riggs, the girls as a group want no men or former men cutting in on their swag. Chris won $323,977 last year. At 21 she has earned more than $1 million.

Chris kept glancing at ber watch because she had an appointment uptown for a fitting of the new tennis cos-tuma she will wear in the Federation Cup, which starts a week from next Sunday in Philadelphia. This is the women's Davis Cup, in which teams of three from 32 countries compete, with two singles matches and one at doubles in each round. Chris, Billie Jean and Rosemary Casals represent the United States.

That raised a question: Were clothes a problem for women traveling steadily and appearing regularly in public? Chris's small laugh was almost apologetic. "I'm nie of the worst," she said. "I always carry more than I need. But Tm getting better-10 tennis costumes instead of 30, and pants are flexible. Four or five pairs. Blue jeans are good for travel."

Lions Are Easy

She said she was tired all the time these days. As a member of the Phoenix team in World Team Tennis she had played four nights in a row before flying to New York. "I enjoy the nights," she said. "When we're playing, my adrenaline flows. But the rest of the time I just can't get enough sleep."

The view across her avocado-and-chicken salad encompassed lower Manhattan, Brooklyn Heights and the Brooklyn, Manhattan and Williamsburg Bridges.

"It looks so peaceful," Chris said.

Peaceful? Did anyone this side of Peter Minuit ever apply that adjective to New York City?

"Nothing is moving," Chris said, "except a few cars on the hridge, and from up here they seen to move slowly." The manager of Windows on the World stopped by to say welcome. His name is Allen Lewis and the last time he was encountered he was running a resort hotel and gam-hing house in Divonne, France, where tyccons from nearby Geneva came to risk fortumes at baccarat. Before that he managed the Forum of the Twelve Caesars when that resteurant pleased palates in 48th Street.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12 THE SUMMARIES

(AP) — Mark Greenwood, swimming seven-tenths of a second faster than he ever had in the 200-meter freestyle, finished in 1 minute 52.21 seconds tonight and upset John Naber, the Olympic four-gold-medal winner, in the Amateur Athletic Union national swimming championships.

The 20-year-old Greenwood, a teammate of Naber's at the University of Southern California, failed to make the United States Olympic team and got a measure of redemption in these outdoor, long course championships. "I bombed out at the trials.

I just wasn't mentally prepared," he said. "I was thinking too much about the other swimmers and not enough about myself. Tonight I

BASEBALL swam my own race." Greenwood said he had METS-Extended Manager Joe Frazi tract through 1977.

Chambliss Clears Bases With one out, Randolph singled, stole secood and ad-vanced to third when Luebber tossed a pickoff attempt into center field. Randolph held third as Stanley grounded out, but he scored as Rivers lined a double along the right-field line. Luebber then walked Roy White, hit Munson with a pitch and left the game. Vic Albury was the new pitcher, and Chris Chambliss drove a double over Bostock's head io center field, driving in all three runners and taking over from Munson the league leadership in runs hatted in, 76 to 74. Throughout all this, Hunter was stifling the Twins. Some observers also thought he was throwing at one of the G.B. Twins. In the Minnesota fifth, after Albury had hit Rivers with a pitch in the Yankee balf of the inning, Hunter threw a pitch close to Dan Ford, then fired one behind him. G.B. After the second one, Kunkel, the plate umpire, strolled to the mound for a chat with Hunter.

Manager Billy Martin of the Yankees ran onto the field and spoke with Kunkel, but there didn't appear to he any heated words exchanged. There didn't appear to be any way the Twins would stop the Yankees, either. In the sixth Munson walked, and Chambliss singled to right, then continued to second as Ford bobhled the ball for Minnesota's fifth error of the game. May followed by driving a towering fly to the center-field wall for a two-run triple, raising the Yankee lead to 9-1. Randolph then doubled home May and scored as Stanley singled.

The Fall of Tell Zaatar

In many ways, Teil Zaatar was symbolic of the Palestinian plight in the Middle East. A beavy fortification in the midst of an industrial suburb, home away from home for a whole generation of displaced peoples; nothing in the Tell Zaatar refugee camp beld out any promise of a better life for the tens of thousands who lived there.

A strategic obstruction on a vital communications route, Tell Zaatar became the focal point of Lebanon's civil war, just as the Palestinian issue stands astride the Middle East peacemaking process. The camp was too pivotai to be bypassed, it acquired an abstract meaning too emotional to be abandoned. At Tell Zaatar, humanity was made to suffer for ideological advantage; the defenders chose resistance to the end.

The fall of Tell Zaatar yesterday, after seven weeks

Outrage in Istanbul...

The instructions given in Libya to the Palestinian gunmen who attacked passengers with grenades and tommyguns in the Istanbul airport' Wednesday were simple: Kill as many Israelis as you can. Although their plan did include hijacking the El Al airliner bound for Tel Aviv, it evidently did not call for the usual tactic of seizing bostages for bargaining purposes—just gun down or blow up as many passengers as possible in retaliation for Israel's rescue raid in Uganda last month.

What seems to have been prompt and effective reaction by Turkisb security police thwarted the hijack and held the casualty list to four killed—two Israelis, one Japanese and a young American, an aide to Senator Jacob Javits of New York—and 26 injured. The two self-styled "active warriors" of the Palestine Liberation Organization are in custody and the world will watch with interest how Turkey's Government meets the next test: bringing the terrorists to stern justice while resisting inevitable Arab blackmail.

It would be comforting to be able to believe that this latest outrage—"murder for murder's sake," as Israel's Prime Minister aptly described it—could be the catalyst that ignited an aroused world community into effective collective action against terrorism, possibly at the United Nations General Assembly next month. Regrettably, this is most unlikely. Arab governments that might desire such action will still feel constrained to thwart any project aimed in part against Palestinian terrorists.

At some point, however, even Arah governments the more moderate ones—will be forced in self-defense to take action against the international campaigns of terror and murder mounted with Soviet arms from Libya. It is not only destruction of Israel that Col. Muammar el-Qaddafi is seeking but the overthrow of many Arah of siege, wanton murder and duplicity, gives Lebanon's Christian community its long sought territorial contiguity between its strongholds of eastern Beirut and the Mediterranean littoral northeast of the capital. In itself, that solves none of Lebanon's real problems. But it may begin to set up the situation in which those problems can finally be addressed, the start of a new political dispensation for Lebanon's beterogeneous society.

For the Palestinians, the loss of their Tell Zaatar base could generate a trauma far deeper than would normally follow the collapse of a strategic position. In the weeks to come, Palestinians of all factions—no less than the influential forces outside—would benefit from a fundamental rethinking of an ideology of war and revanchism that has sapped the energies of a whole generation, and achieved nothing.

debate, merely urges that any new wiretap legislation conform to the standards recommended by the Church Intelligence Committee. That is hardly a "crazy" position.

The Buckley Caper

Senator Buckley's possible last-minute entry as a Presidential candidate appears to be more sensational than significant. There is, of course, always a chance that the Republican coovention, weary of a deadlock between President Ford and Governor Reagan, will turn to the fresh face of the New York conservative; stranger things have happened in cooventions. But on almost every count the episode looks like a tactical byplay. Although the Senator cannot formally be placed in nomination without a majority of five state delegations -all but impossible-he needs no such designation to get the vote of anyone who cares to give it to him. Such votes may be few, but they can, theoretically, deny a first-ballot majority to either of the leading contenders. The question is, who would give Mr. Buckley their votes-Ford's supporters or those for Reagan?

President Ford would be the psychological loser if the maneuver forced a second ballot, releasing delegates legally bound to him who really favor Mr. Reagan; but he would gain if there were extended balloting and conservatives were genuinely split between Reagan and Buckley.

Mr. Reagan would lose, psychologically, if the votes came from his supporters, reducing his total on the first ballot. He has to win over, on that ballot, practically all the votes still uncommitted if he is to have a chance at the nomination. Losing some to Buckley would hardly enhance bis chances, and some of his managers have already indicated displeasure at the Buckley move.

Who gains, then, from that maneuver? Possibly those Reagan followers who want the Californian for President but not Senator Schweiker for Vice President. Senator Tower of Texas, a Ford supporter, sees the effort as the forerunner of a "Dump Schweiker" movement whose promoters will gladly drop. Mr. Buckley if Governor Reagan will drop Mr. Schweiker. If that proves to be the case, the stratagem will rightly be viewed as one more instance of a cynicism now growing rampant in right-wing Republican circles.

What U.S. Foreign Policy Should Be

To the Editor:

With the election coming up, it would be highly desirable to air all views on what American foreign policy should be. With detente suffering from criticism and declining in appeal, both at home and abroad, it is indeed high time to call for a new guiding concept that will give clear direction to U.S. policy.

Hence, the concept of "intertwined restraint and redevelopment" is hereby offered. Briefly stated, it has two main principles.

First, toward the U.S.S.R. Both superpowers should exercise restraint toward each other as well as toward other nations. And the spirit of restraint does have its positive side of redeveloping desirable relations. The reduction of armament is but one outstanding goal among various possibilities. However, as the redeveloping relations evolve, both sides must, in the spirit of restraint, retrain from making expansionist or imperialistic attempts at the expense of any other nation Americans should hold this proposition to be self-evident. This is what most nations in the world are looking for. For instance, China stands opposed to hegemony. It means the Second, toward the world at large, the American policy should give particular attention to redeveloping progress in various nations. It should respect, appreciate or at least understand the national and redevelopmental aspirations of other nations. It should appropriately support such aspirations in varying degrees of desirability and practicality. This is also

Schweiker's 'Moderation' To the Editor:

I am amazed at the screams of dismay emanating from Republican conservatives at the selection of Senator Schweiker by Governor Reagan as his Vice-Presidential designee.

Of course, Senator Schweiker voted on the side of his beavily labordominated constituency in industrial Pennsylvania in such matters as pensioo reform, black lung-disease benefits, consumer protection, etc. However, he also voted against forced busing, abortion, confiscation of citizens' firearms, and elimination of capital punlshment.

I'll stack up Senator Schweiker's economic liberalism and social moderatino with President Ford's Vice President aoy day of the week. WILLIAM M. MURRAY governments, among others. Algeria's is the only one of six neighboring governments that Libya has not attempted to undermine in the last six months.

President Gaafar al-Nimeiry of the Sudan Is the most recent Arab head of state to be a target for Coionel Qaddafi's aggression—in this case a virtual invasion by soldiers financed, equipped with Soviet arms and trained in Libya. How long will it take for such Arab leaders to realize that, by condoning such Libyan-backed outrages as the attempted hijacking in Istanbul, they are encouraging a force also beot on their own destruction?

.. Airport Laxity

However remote the prospects for international action against terror and hijacking, there are still security measures individual governments can take---ought to bave taken long ago. The Palestinian terrorists were able to carry hand luggage containing grenades and guns into Istanbul airport because they had evidently not been subjected to any security check between Libya and Rome.

In light of previous hijackings and the Palestinian terrorist attack that killed 32 at Rome's airport in 1973, one would have expected Italian authorities to be unusually vigilant. They claim in fact that transit passengers and their hand luggage are subject to electronic search; but the fact is that in this instance, they failed as completely as did their counterparts in Athens to detect the arms used last month by the Palestinian terrorists who hijacked the Air France plane to Uganda.

No hijack system is foolproof; but the record in recent years seems to distinguish clearly those international airports where every reasonable precaution is taken. Lack of such precautions plays into the hands of terrorists.

Wrong Equation

Attorney General Edward H. Levi, while speaking before the American Bar Association this week, deplored the current level of public debate. Unfortunately, his contribution on that occasion did little to raise that level.

Mr. Levi said it was bard for a society to get a "candid" look at the issues when the National Rifle Association goes "crazy" over demands for gun control and when "the counterpart of the N.R.A., namely the American Civil Liberties Union," goes "crazy" when wiretap procedures are discussed.

That is an obviously flawed equation. Civil libertarians undoubtedly wish the A.C.L.U. had the lobbying skill and clout of the N.R.A. The equation, moreover, wrongly assumes that the goals of the two groups are of comparable value and that intellectual efforts employed in pursuing these goals are also similar.

The N.R.A. tries to scuttle all gun control legislation, while the A.C.L.U. is engaged in a serious debate with the Attorney General and his legislative allies as to wbether the safeguards against unwarranted tapping written into proposed legislation give sufficient protections to citizens' rights. While the N.R.A. opposes virtually any curbs on guns, the A.C.L.U. in the current Reform or Guile?

Among the proposals for changing the way Vice Presidents are nominated, a perfectly logical one, theoretically, is that the Presidential candidates indicate in advance their respective preferences. Supposedly, this would give the delegates an additional insight into each would-be President's political philosophy and at the same time insure a compatibility of outlook at the head of the ticket. But former Governor Reagan's declared choice of Senator Schweiker has shown all too clearly that the innovation need show nothing at all about a candidate's philosophy and indicate no compatibility other than a jointly beld passion to get elected.

The procedure leaves the track of well-intentiooed reform precisely at the point where Mr. Reagan has taken it. He has oamed his choice for second place not because be imagines his running mate would, in the event of his required succession, make the same kind of President as himself nor even, primarily, for any imagined strength he might bring to the ticket. For the first time, a Presidential candidate has designated his choice of running mate and announced the choice beforehand—simply in order to play convention politics and promote his own oomination.

Indeed there is no assurance that, having used Mr. Schweiker to draw delegates away from Presideot Ford, the Reagan camp will not abandon the Pennsylvania Senator once their man has won his own nomination.

It is at this juncture that Mr. Reagan himself comes forward with the unctuous demand that President Ford follow suit by naming his Vice-Presideotial choice. Having failed to profit as much as he had hoped by his own startling selection, he would like to see his opponent now take the same risk. Even if Mr. Ford made a less dramatic blunder, he would be bound oo matter whom be picked to draw fire from some quarters and to lose some support in a situation where be cannot afford to lose any.

Governor Reagan is demonstrating that even a reasonable reform can be turned to Machiavellian ends. That ought not to be enough to condemn the reform, but certainly it must opeo to question its value in actual political operations. The method of nominating Vice Presidents has already been subjected to so much critical analysis that once this election is over, no time should be lost in exploring new and better ways to deal with the problem —including even the outright elimination of an office whose first holder, John Adams, said of it. "In this i am nothing, hut I may be everything."

Whatever the solution may be, it should be carefully weighed, in the national interest, and not left to the instant scheming of ambitious politicians concerned with their immediate advantage. eyes and senses are shocked at the countless numbers of bydrants left open by irresponsible citizens. A Site for the 1984 Olympics

To the Editor:

Should the gardeners of the world cease growing roses because some people destroy flowers? I think not. There will always be people who will seek to destroy beauty. I have just returned from a week's vacation in Mootreal atteoding the Olympic Games and found the whole experience quite exhilerating. While there, I read The Times editorial of July 20 complaining of the political use of the games, urging the elimination nf team sports, and concluding that the games, as presently cooducted, are not worth bolding.

I strongly disagree. Graoted that Prime Minister Trudeau's actinn on the Taiwan matter was an abuse of his position as head of the Government of the host couotry, and that the African nations used the games to gaio attention to an-issue that bad oothing to do with the Olympics. Kansas City, but mostly they just hate cows. As for me, an expatriated native, my affection increases with the years; when I'm asked if my hometown bas any flaws, the only one I can think of is that it harbors within its city limits a number of Chamber of Commerce types who, for reasons no rational person can fathom, are possessed with the notion of changing it into Houston. A lot of people I went to high school with seem to lead contented lives in Kansas City; when asked about the virtues of the city, they are likely to

I suppose the Chamber folks love liver really do light up at night. I like the Chamber types personally, of course-they're from my hometown, after all, and it's a friendly town-but I'm afraid they sometimes behave like TUDES.

I've never argued that Kansas City is only a cow town. It is such a singular American mixture — Midwestern and Prairie and Southern, farm-town and big city-that it defies classification. I have, with bometown pride, noticed it identified on 'regionalists' maps of the United States as a "nonforming area." ("Don't you dare mention friendliness and pleasant mention 'Farm Vote' around here. young man," I can hear some militant rubaphohlac telling an innocent young television reporter. "Til have you know we had a corrupt Democratic machine when Richard Daley was a babe on bis precinct captain's knee.") Kansas City used to have two identifying slogans until St. Louis, by building a $49 million nonfunctional arch, managed to steal the title "Gateway to the West." But Kansas City was left with the much more significant sobriquet: "The Heart of America." Leave It to Easterners like the St. Louis gang to outsmart themselves by stealing the wrong alogan. I have always argued that part of Kansas City's splendor comes from its background as a cow town (or wheat town or soybean town)-that its residents are friendly not because Rand McNally drew a circle on the map within which people would be friendly but because many of them are only a generation or two away from farms or small towns, that its best restaurants are by no accident those that serve dishes like the barbecue brought to town by Southern blacks or the fried chicken brought to town by Midwestern farm falks. The rubaphobiacs, needless to say, try to steer visitors away from such restaurants, preferring to show off the Continental palaces where, as on the continent of Antarctica, everything starts out frozen. A friend of mine who once wandered into the town on the lecture circuit asked bis hosts to take him to Arthur Bryant's Barbecue Restaurant -having beard, quite correctly, that it is the single best restaurant in the world-and was taken instead to the giamorous Arrowhead Club of the glamorous Harry S. Truman Sports Complex (a football stadium standing next to a baseball stadium, as if the builder couldn't get it right the first time and tried again), where, he has since testified, he ate what the menu identified as "a fish of the Pacific waters." The list of restaurant suggestions sent by the city's public-relations firm to reporters covering the Republican National Convention does not even mention Bryant's. Chamber agents infiltrated into the convention press gallery will undoubtedly try to squelch any boomlet developing for an expedition to R. C.'s fried chicken place, which is in an annexed area that is now called 135th Street and will presumably start calling itself Martin City again if it ever regains its independence. R. C.'s has deep-fried chicken livers and fried chicken with a strong, peppery batter, and potatoes with a marvelous suggestion of bacon grease that has, like an old retainer, been with the family for generations. (A Continental menu in the Midwest would presumably identify them as pommes de terre à la bas église, or potatoes in the Low Church manner.)

A loyal Chamber man would hate to see a country place like R. C.'s filled with a gang of reporters who might come away with the wrong impression of the glamour city of the seventiesand might also make it difficult for the Chamber man and bis wife to get a table for dinner. C1976 Calvin Trillin

Culvin Trillin writes for The New Yorker:

The Paradox In Kansas City

By Tom Wicker

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 12-The paradox of the 1976 Republican National Convention is that Gerald Ford appears likely to be nominated, but that almost everything else seems to be largely out of his control.

As it now appears, moreover, Mr. Ford will be nominated if at all by the narrowest of margins over Ronald Reagan-perhaps by less than 1,200 delegates, when 1,130 are needed for a majority. No President in modern times has come into a convention so sharply challenged and so little in command of his own party.

President Truman had strong oppoaition in 1948, but was never so hardpressed for renomination as Mr. Ford bas been. Even after he had withdrawn as a candidate for renomination, Lyndon Johnson had greater command of the Democratic conventinn in 1963 than Mr. Ford does of the Republicans today.

The President's forces here were unable, for example, even to pusb support of the Equal Rights Amendment through a platform subcommittee, although support for E.R.A. is a passionate cause for Mrs. Ford and has been part of Republican platforms since the 1940's.

conventions. Mr. Ford's victory, if he wins it, will be so narrow that Reagan supporters might claim second place for their man almost as a matter of right

If the threat of a conservative third party should come to seem real, Mr. Ford might feel all the more necessity fnr putting Mr. Reagan on bis ticket. Against their alliance ... even if it would be more of a sbotgun wedding-a conservative rebellion would be bighly unlikely.

Under other circumstances. Mr. Ford might find númerous Republicans who would bring more national strength to his ticket. But in the circumstances he bas to deal with, his first task will be to put his riven party together and hold it together.

Beyond that, Mr. Reagan unquestionably would bring strength to. a Ford ticket in California, Texas and Florida. three states without which a Republican victory against Jimmy Carter and the Democrats would be almost inconceivable. In other sizable states likely to be, battlegrounds this fail-such as North Carolina and Indiana, in both of which Mr. Reagan won primaries-his name on the ticket would be helpful.

His selection, nevertheless, would be a sort of final paradox for Gerald Ford; it would mean he had not really been able to control even the choice of his own running mate.

Ford managers bere want to avoid stumbling into a fight with Mr. Reagan on some procedural or platform issue, for the obvious reason that they might either show weakness by losing or, in winning, create an emotional backlash that would swing delegates to Mr. Reagan. That's prudent strategy, but it serves only to emphasize bow evenly divided the convention appears to be.

On the other band, Mr. Reagandespite brilliant management by John Sears-can't seem to find the means by which to pull in enough of the uncommitted delegates, or win over enough of Mr. Ford's, to reach the magic number. Close as he is, the basic Reagan problem remains what it has been from the start-no matter where their hearts may secretly lie. too many Republicans believe that rejecting an incumbent President of their own party is too big a risk to take.

Mr. Sears' many tactical ploys do not include the suddenly developing move to put Senator James Buckley of New York in nomination. Nor, if that happens, is it likely to help Mr. Reagan, since the Buckley name is likely to draw more Reagan delegates than Fnrd supporters.

Mr. Buckley's reasons for letting his name be used are not clear. But the Buckley movement, headed by Senator Jesse Helms of North Carolina, appears to be designed tn drive a hard-cnre conservative platform down Mr. Ford's throat—and Mr. Reagan'a for that matter.

This suggests at least the possibility nf a conservative third party if this convention does not produce a platform and a ticket acceptable to Mr. Helms and others on the far right. Their instrument could be the so-called Freedum and Independence Party, organized by William Rusher and others, and said to have a ballot place in numerous states already.

In this situatinn, and despite all denials, a Ford-Reagan ticket may be a strong possibility. The two candidates have fought to something like a draw, through all the primaries and state

Because they are afflicted with a disease, common in the American provinces, that I have come to think of as rubaphobla - not the fear of rubes but the fear of being thought of as a rube. APRIL IN PARIS, OR A DAY AT THE HOSPI

That could be the price by 1980. If the present trends continue, some hospital stays in the Greater New York area could cost an average of $450 a day by 1980. Certain hospital stays in Manhattan already cost $300 a day. And you can get a packaged week-long trip to Paris for little more: $469.

What is Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Greater New York doing about it? We have a number of programs to help hospitals to attain higher levels . of efficiency and contain costs. But another thing we can do is to save that room charge by treating people on an out-patient basis. Such as "Ambulatory Surgery", where a patient has minor surgery and goes home the same day.

For several years now, we've paid more claims for out-patients than in-patients. Many of our out-patient benefits were among the first in the country. And remain among the best.

So we not only save room cost, but patients can lead more normal lives at home. How home care saves hospital dollars. Since 1960 we've been showing the whole country how home care benefits can save money and make patients happier. Under our program, a patient can leave the hospital earlier and recuperate at home. Patients get all the medication, equipment, and nursing they need. And they feel better because they're at home with their family and friends.

Getting second opinions on surgery: two heads may be cheaper than one. Would a second specialist's opinion on elective surgery reduce the number of unnecessary operations?

A study cited by Congress indicates it might: board-certified specialists disagreed 17.6% of the time with the original opinion. Thus, while we're not prejudging the results, we're now making second surgical opinion available to "experiencerated" groups as an added benefit.

Subscribers in these groups can get an opinion on elective surgery from a second specialist at no cost to themselves.

We are hopeful that this program will save surgery, money, and hospital use while improving the quality of health care.

The home "kidney machine" lives and saves money. We were the first Blue Cross and Blue Shield plan in the country to offer the new home hemodialysis equipment as one of our benefits.

Since 1972, we have made out-patient hemodialysis treatment plus actual in-home dialysis equipment available as one of our benefits. Kidney sufferers whose conditions are stabilized can now lead nearly normal lives. And each of them are save about $20,000 a year as well.

Be informed. We need your help. We want you to become interested and informed. Learn what new cost-containment programs are being proposed. Think them over. We need the support of every citizen in our work toward cost containment.

We believe there's more to good health than just paying bills.

WillHaveLargeBulkSupplies in a Form for Distribution

in About Four Weeks

By HAROLD M. SCHMECK Jr. Special to The New York Times WASHINGTON, Aug. 12-Flu vaccine manufacturers have told the government that they will start immediately to put their large supplies of hulk vac-cme into final form for distribution and use, a Federal official said today.

Details are being worked out in meetings between the Gov-ernment and industry. One such meeting was held here yester day. Another was beld today at the Federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

In answer to a question today, Dr. Harry Meyer, direc-tor of the Food and Drug Administration's bureau of biologics, said that the first substantial supplies of vaccine against the swine-type flu would be ready for distribution in about four weeks and that larger quantities would become available in succeeding weeks. He said that this should permit immunization programs begin by late September.

For Southerners in New York City. Carter's Rise Helps Them Walk Tall

By ROY REED Jimmy Carter's rise to prominence has given new status to Southerners living in New York City, "He's making it possible for us to come out of the closet," one said the other day.

The Southerners here are being sought out anxiously by New Yorkers who want inside information or reas-surance about the Georgian runniog for President.

"Everybody is uptight over the prospect of having a cracker in the White House," Bennie Wallace, a jazz saxo-phone player of SoHo and Chattanooga, said the other day. He grinoed with a kind of good-natured malice and aaid in a Tennessee drawl, "I love that."

Beyond Presidential poli-tics, many transplanted Southerners are eojoying the new deferential attention because it contrasts with the alternately fawning and contemptuous treatment they say they have received from New Yorkers over the years. Alabama and Mississippi accents are being oiled and tuned up. Southerners are asking for packages from home to show the Yankees what okra and purple-bull peas taste like.

C. Vann Woodward's histo-ries of the South are being dusted and reread to prepare for dinner-party questions like, "Why do you Southerners think you're any different from anybody else?" and, "Why are Southerners so different from everybody else?" Although the new attention is fun for them, it has had a sohering effect on some. It has caused them to think anew about their Southern heritage. And it has led them to remember how far they are from home.

A dinner party was beld receotly in an uptown apart-ment overlooking the Hudson River. The hosts were Dennis and Anne Good Kelley, he from Queeos, she from Mo-hile, Ala.

The guests were mostly Southercers. They ate roast sirloin and hrown Madeira sauce and drank Côtes du Rohne as they talked about fried chicken and combread and listened to Earl Scruggs sninning magic with banjo on the stereo.

Someone asked where ome was.

Jim and Pat Shirk said it was Arkansas. They have lived here eight years, but not long ago they bought an old farm down the road from her grandparents in Calhouo County, Ark, "Just to go hack to in case there's another depression," she explaioed. She has a middlemanagement joh at Citihank. He is an environmental eogi neer.

Dianne Orkin Footlick, an artist and teacher, has lived in New York off and on Since 1960 when she graduated from Newcomh College in New Orleans and "came right straight flat out up here." "When someooe asks me where I'm from, I never say, "New York," she said. "I always say. 'Jackson, Mississippi.' That's really my bome. I could go back there any time and he welcome."

She paused, then added, "But I don't know if I would be comfortable."

There are some Southerners who can no more explain why they live in New York than a bee can tell why It goes to the hive, or a cat to a nest, But Bennie Wallace knows exactly why he is here.

"I came to New York solely because of music," he said. "This is pretty much the cultural center of jazz."

He is 29 years old. He left Chattanooga, where he learned jazz from a high school teacher who took him to black nightclubs, and drifted through Atlanta, Boston, Denver, San Francisco and Chicago before landing in New York. He has been playing here with various jazz groups since 1972. Mr. Wallace was eating Chinese food in a SoHo res-taurant as he talked. He said that he missed Southern food, and his family. Golfers on the South Shore Golf Course in the Huguenot section of Staten Island are encroaching on private prop-erty when they get to the 17th green, and have been for years, although nobody, including the Parks Department, which owns and operates the course, knew it until recently. While developing plaos to build a development of one-family and two-family bouses in the area, the S.&T. Rich-mond Corporation, a Brooklyn real estate concern discovered that the golf course bulges over onto land it

"We told the Parks Department we'd he glad to swap for another plece of land near ours, and we are hoping that can be worked out," Bernard Tedlis, a lawyer for the Corporation and a part owner of the land, said yesterday. "It's not that simple," according to Janet Cotton, coun-sel to the Parks Department, "We can't swap. Park land is inalienable — it would take an act of the Legislature." Therefore, Miss Cotton said, the department is making plans to redesign and rebuild the golf course to get it all back on city-owned land, and to give the corporation back its "little piece." That little piece is "no great shakes," according to Parks Commissioner Martin Lang. It is a triangle 150 feet by 280 feet, mostly taken up by a mapped, but non-existent street named "Rumba."

"About 5,000 square feet of it is theirs, worth about $5.000 at the most," Commissioner Lang estimated. "If there were a structure on it, the situation wou

Planning to Go to Collectiv Bargaining Office Today on Street Patrol Time

By DAMON STETSON The Patrolmen's Benevoler Association announced yeste day that it would file an appea today with the Office of Colleg tive Bargaining seeking to over turn the decision of an impass panel calling for new wor schedules.

Douglas D. Weaving, P.B. presideot, described the dec sioo as "completely contrary to the weight of evidence. Th ruling, he said, constituted "hoax upon the citizens and profound disservice to the pc lice officers who are alread badly overworked by virtue o the continuing reduction i maopower."

Herman E. Cooper, wh served as special coursel fo New York City in the dispute said the city would file a cross appeal on the grounds that the award was not a reflection o the evidence and was an abusof discretion. The terms of the decision, he said, were a "hla tant compromise" and ignored "the predicate of the city's caswhich was to reserve to the volice commissioner the de ployment of manpower eod the functions to be performed."

Daily Working Time

Uoder the panel's ruling, the daily working time of police officers would be reduced from eight and a half hours to eigh and a quarter hours but over a year's time they would bave work 10 more days than ir the past. The city had sough a reduction in the day to eight hours in order to provide addi tional street patrol time with out additional cost.

The initial reactions of both the city and the P.B.A. to the decision last Tuesday were in direct contrast to yesterday': critical comments. Some ob servers suggested that P.B.A appeal was a political move to appease disgruntled police offi-

FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES AMENDMENT TO THE NEW_YORK STATE SOCIAL SERVICES PLAN

Title XX of the Federal Social Security Act

On May 28, 1976 the New York State Department of Social Services published a proposed amend-ment to the State's Comprehensive Annual Social Services Program Plan for 1975-76. The purpose of the proposed amendment was to make options available to the local social services districts for Family Planning Services. For the following 30 days the State received comments on the proposed amendment from the general public.

Copies of these comments and a summary are avail-able without charge from the New York State Department of Social Services, 1450 Western Avenue, Albany, New York 12243.

The State Department received a total of 24 latters in response to the proposed amendment. The majority of these latters (16) opposed any public provision of family planning services. Of the remaining letters, two expressed approval, three raised technical questions, and three expressed approval with reservations. However, the furnishing of those services is required by both State and Federal laws.

The final amendment, therefore, reflects only one change from the proposed amendment. In response to local public comment, Putnam County reversed its orig-inal decision to provide medical family planning services to income eligibles not qualifying for Medical Assistance.

The amendment is today published in final form and will become effective today, August 13, 1976.

Beginning today, the following is adopted as tha defi-nition of "Family Planning Services" in the current Plan:

"Services to enable individuals of childbearing age (including minors who may be sexually active) to limit, in accordance with their wishes, their family size, space their children, or prevent or reduce the incidence of un-wanted pregnancies by providing and arranging for the following composet expressions. following component services:

a. Counseling and educational services which include the distribution of printed material, group discussions and individual sessions to discuss family planning information and education resources available in the community.

Thousands in Appalachians Return in Major Break in Wildcat Action

STRIKING MINERS

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 12 (AP)-Thousands of Appalachian coal miners began return-ing to work today in the first major break in a wildcat strike that the industry says has cost the nation more than $130 mil-lion in lost production.

Mines across northern West Virginia were in operation for the first time in four weeks. The officials said that the backto-work movement also included miners in six other states.

Dissidents said that they would continue picketing until Tuesday, when 213 striking miners accused of contempt are scheduled to appear, for a hearing in Federal court.

The miners had been ordered to return to work by the United Mine Workers' executive board. They had been threatened with expulsion from the union.

SHOW BIZ FILMS

There's no business that is more eternal and schmaltzy than show hiz, aod it feeds upon itself unstintingly. Two of the finer films about show business aod its bitter backstage are beiog shown Saturday at the Carnegie Hall Cinema, 887 Seventh Avenue, near 57th Street (757-2131). "Applause" was an early sound film, with music, made in 1929 by Roubeo Mamouliao and starring Helen Morgan in perhaps her most notable film appearance. It's an expressionistic film, very melodramatic. With it is playing "All About Eve," Joseph L. Mankiewicz's 1950 film, starring Bette Davis and Anne Baxter in a cruel tale of ego and power, Broadway style. The film "Applause" is oot at all related to the Broadway musical "Applause," which was an offspring of "All About Eve." Admission: $3; students, $2; Eve." TWO BY ORSON WELLES

Broadway Mel Gussow

HARLES LUDLAM, the doyen of the Ridiculous Theatrical Company, is writiog a Broadway musi-cal about Catherine de' Medici. Tom Eyen, the author of "The Dirtiest Show in Town," is writing a Broadway musical about New York. Molly Picon and Hans Conreid are coming back to Broadway in "The Second Time Around," a sentimental comedy by Henry Denker. And a prolific Spanish playwright, Antonio Buero Vallejo, may be making his Broadway debut with the science-fictional "The Basement Skylight." The sponsor of these diverse entertainmeots is Adela Holzer, who only last March threw in the towel, retrieved her checkbook and abandoned Broadway.

The cause of Mrs. Holzer's anger was "Me Jack, You Jill," a Broadway comedy that closed before it could open. "It was a dog," says Mrs. Holzer succinctly. When she wanted help in rescuing it, no director was willing to leap aboard. Explaining her re-entry into the maelstrom of the marketplace, she said, "I have grown a very tough ele-phant skin."

She has now resolved to do plays "in a very dif-ferent way," to try them out, "and unless a book is in perfect shape I'm not going to do it." She adds: "Writers freeze in rehearsals. A lot of money goes down the drain, and more than money, reputation." For "Second Time Around," she went to the Midnight Sun Theater in Atlanta on a scouting expedition. She liked what she saw, including a standing ovation from the audience. The play is, she says, "a comedy about love from two mature people—in their 60's." Directed hy Robert H. Livingston, and starring Miss Picon and Mr. Conreid, the show is scheduled to reach Broadway on Dec. 20. "The Basement Skylight" she discovered in Madrid in 1969 and has been voguing to do in English ever since.

"The Basement Skyight" she discovered in Malrie in 1969 and has been vowing to do in English ever since. The play has already heen seen, she said, in Paris, South America and Puerto Rico. In it, two scientists use a time machine to return from the 23d century to the middle of the 20th century. The play deals with religion, philosophy, war and romance. "It has symbols, but not too many," said the producer, who has collaborated on the translatioo with her hushand. Peter Holzer, and her associate, Leonard Finger. Mrs. Holzer herself will direct a workshop production this month. If it works, the next stop is Broadway.

Her two musicals are in more formative stages. The Ludlam show, currently untitled, had its origins in a musical called 'The Hour of the Witch," with a book by Tom Topor and music by Gary William Friedman and Will Holt. The book-about a witch hunt in medieval Francehas heen jettisooed, along with about half the music. As Me! Shapiro, who is directing the production, said, "I Mer Shapiro, who is directing the production, said, I thought it was ridiculous to dn a musical about the Cath-olic Church." In search of another story, he began reading up on French history and, finding Catherine de' Medici, "her homosexual son Henry III, and a court filled with designers who were traioed killers." he also "found that I was in the world of Charles Ludam." When approached, Mr. Ludlam, whose Ridiculous work has been more under than overground, embraced the opportunity to broaden his audience. At the moment, he is on tour with his com-pany in Florence, duing "Camille" (starring Mr. Ludlam in the title role) and "Stage Blood" and, presumably, in off hours, doing research on the Medicis. He will write, but not perform in, the Medici musical, but he has another triple-threat Ridiculous epic coming up: a Ludlamized ver-sion of Wagner's "Ring" cycle, entitled "The Ring Got Farblundget."

Tom Even is a second Off Off Broadway showman captured by Mrs. Holzer. He has been tapped to write the hook of "Ah New York," which has been described as "sort of a contemporary minstrel show"—with music by Galt MacDermot. While Mr. Ludlam is in Italy, Mr. Eyen is in Hollywood, writing television scripts for "Mary Hartman Mary Hartman." He has already writteo another

'Guys and Dolls' was oever dead. When you do 'Bohème,' you don't say you're reviving Boheme.' They're not comparable, althoogh I think Puccini would have liked 'Guys and Dolls.'"

"Guys and Dolls" has oever stopped playing; it has had six major New York productions including the black version that is installed at the Broadway theater. It was Mr. Burrows's first Broadway show, and talking about it made him remember opening night out of town, Phila-delphia, 1950. "I was nervous," he recalled. "The over-ture, the opening dance and the three horseplayers came out. A trumpet blew. First call. Da-da-da-da-da-da-dadah! And there was a wave of laughter through the audience. I said to my wife, 'We're in!"

Before "Guys and Dolls," Mr. Burrows had been a very successful writer and performer on radio and television. With his first Broedway show, he says, "I found a whole new gold mine." He went on: "Not just money, although money is included. I like the theater liked his partnership with Frank Loesser. He e what pleased him most about the current ye the renewed appreciation that people had Loesser's music. EOPLE SEE an actor at the ballet, and right " away he's a ballet freak," says Walter Matthau in a wounded voice. 'I happen to play the horses once in a while, so naturally that makes me a racetrack habitué."

The sensitive subject of gambliog bas come up because Mr. Matthau, whose penchant for picking four-legged losers is legendary, bas just been cast in "Casey's Shadow" as a trainer entrusted with the task of turning Alexis Smith's horse into a millioo-dollar winoer. Although Carol Sobieski's comedy will begin shooting any day under the direction of Martin Ritt, Mr. Matthau is scarcely in a panic. Clearly, the 52-year-old actor is no slave to Stanislavsky, and he wouldn't dream of traipsing around with some trainer to see what makes him tick.

"Besides, trainers are all different," he says from Hollywood, after polishing off a ocontime breakfast. "Some wear auits and ties, some wear jeans and cowboy boots. I went for a fittiog the other day and the wardrobe man said, What do you think this character should wear, Mr. Matthau? And I said, 'Gee, I dos't know. Whatever you've got.'

Tve heard about all the research Al Pacino and Robert De Niro do for their roles, and I think they're both excellent actors. I have a hunch, though, that most of those guys are just trying to coovince, the critics that they're serious, hard-working actors. But I don't have to throw myself into a role that way, because I've lived everything---I've been a waiter, a gambler, a pimp, a murderer. I'm from the ghetto, and the only time I do any research is when I play aristocracy.

Mr. Matthau's most recent comedies, "The Sunshine Boys" and "The Bad News Bears," attempted to make seri-ous comments about the contemporary American scene. Will "Casey's Sbadow" strive for profundity? "I think all my comedies are deep, and all my noncomedies are shallow. Comedy is always deeper than tragedy or melodrama, and it does make a statement. Everything makes a statement; every time you open your mouth, you make a statement. Unless you yawn. And eveo a yawn makes a statement; it says you've got a lack of oxygen."

What is the moral of this racetrack serio-comedy? "The moral of the story is 'Don't worry if you compromise your priociples, because everything is going to turn out O.K. in the end.' You might say I play a character like Richard Nixon.'

Mr. Matthau acknowledges that he has made career compromises. To atone for his artistic sins, he has occasionalty returned to his roots, to the theater, as he did last year in a Los Angeles production of "Juno and the Paycock." "Screen actiog is retiremeot acting, like giving exhibitions of your former skills. Once io a while it's good to come out of retirement and knock your head against the wall, to pi back to your craft. It's good for the soul, but oo good for the pocketbook.'

It's item said that Mr. Matthau's "retirement" performaoces NW command $1 millioo a sbot. "What I actually get, ather lawyers and taxes and agents, is about $20,000 to play with. Press agents like to throw apound those big numbers because theo they have something to ideotify with. They figure that if a person looking the way Walter Matthau looks cao make a million per picture, anyone can. I've got to admit that the fringe benefits in this business are good, though. They send a limousine for you, they get your airplane tickets and they take care of the tips. I oever know what to tip a porter."

Playing opposite Alexis Smlth is another nice fringe benefit. "I always thought Alexis Smith was a very sexylooking woman. I receptly met her and she looked even sexier than before. Alexis is sexy because she has oo pomposity. Pomposity springs from a lack of intelligence. Ask any doctor."

Pompous doctors are oot an unknown breed.

"That's what I mean. I've only known three doctors who were oot pompous. Of course, if some guy operates oo me after baving read this, I want him to know that he's one of the three."

Mr. Matthau has oot yet selected a vehicle to follow

"Casey's Sbadow." "Someone just sent over a script by special delivery. Surely it could have waited. Of course, the post office doesn't say what special delivery means; they don't say it's faster, they just say it's special. Anyway, I read the first few pages and oow I can't digest my French. toast. I'm going to seed it back by registered mail."

Hollywood has always kept a close eye oo Broadway's box office, so it comes as oo surprise to bear that "Equus," "The Wiz," "Grease," "California Suite," "Same Time, Next Year" and "A Chorus Line" bave been purchased by eoterprising moviemakers. But any playgoer who saw "Short Eyes" during its brief run a couple of seasons ago may he surprised to learn that Miguel Piñero's scalding account of prisoo life and death has been set for filming.

The play, which won an Oble in 1974, centers on a middle-class married man who is accused of sexually violat-ing a child, and the graphic scene in which he is knifed by his fellow prisooers was one of several which proved too harrowing for many subscribers to the Vivian Beaumont. Other sceoes boldly depicted homosexual relationships. masturbation, sadistic behavior by the guards and the torturiog of a prisocer by submerging his head in a tollet.

Mr. Piñero, a former prisoo inmate, is oow at work on the screenplay, which will be shot in two version softer one being simed toward the television marke Mayfield, Godfrey Cambridge and Freddie Fender ready been signed for major roles in the film and fi tor, Chester Fox, is negotiating with Sam Water play the suspected child molestor.

Mr. For, who is proud of his short subjects Class, and Waiting for Monday, and would like i a pair of exploitation items called "Seven Deadly S. Massage Parlor Munders," expects to begin; "Short Eyes" for producer Lewis Harris in Novem oddly enough, he plans to shoot it in the actual as the story.

"We'll be filming down at the Tombs; on the and minth floors. The bottom floor is still being u holding area for prisoners on their way to Rikers] Sing Sing. We expected to encounter lots of prof getting permission to film there, but the New Department of Corrections and the Mayor's office (ing over backward to cooperate with us Apparent feel, as we do, that the public has a right to kno goes on in prison."

In 1971 Alan Arkin directed his first film Morders," and acted the cameo role of a psychol tive. In 1976 he is about to direct his second fil Sale," in which he will play the pivotal part of Sale," in which he will play, the protect part of married man whose ogre of a father still adminis chological spankings, Between directorial assignmy Arkin has kept busy on screen he'll be seen that the eccentric Signund Frend in "The Seven Phy-Ge tion" and he has staged a comber of phy-Seven Phy-Ge tion" and he has staged a comber of phy-Seven Phy-Ge "The Sunshine Boys" and an Off Broadway parts of of Lorraine," starting his wife, Barbara Danie Al ago Mr. Arkin filled in a few of the specifics of h professional life.

"It's more fun to yell at other people than to. at," he said. "That's why directing is better than Isn't it nerve tacking to direct yourself and eye on the other actors at the same time? "I hav and warm relationship with me. If my part we textured, I wouldn't be able to do it, but Fire Sai a comic romp, an insanity written by Robert Kly the guy who wrote 'Where's Poppa?' and he hasnany tamer since.".

Even insanities have story lines. "Fire Sale a family trying to hold a small department shore and everybody in the movie is a raving lunatic. If Vincent Gardenia, is the meanest man on earth a has squashed his kids. My brother, Rob Reiner, is a old basket case, and I've turned into something my father."

Three female roles have been woven into quilt fabric of "Fire Sale." Kay Medford will mother of the dizzy tribe, Barbara Dana will be Mr. fiancée and Anjanette Comer will sct as Mr. Arti "We have a terrible marriage; but a happy one if us, you'd say, Td sure hate to have a marriage be but each of us is married to exactly the right if Ooe wonders what Freud would say about suc

"Not my o ysis so much as the coocept of the technique of It's oot pure science, you know; it came out of character. I did an enormous lot of reading to coded up with a very taciturn person, one with a g of presence but oot much personality. To a grea he lived vicariously, through what he heard and wrote.'

Mr. Arkin's analysis of the Hollywood scen the more it changes, the more it is the same. "It's) ent than it ever was, except that trends last a period of time now. Music by the Ellington Ban

By JOHN S. WILSON

"Working with Alvin Ailey is very similar to working with the old man," said Merwith the out man, shit had cer Ellington with a wry grin, referring to his father. Dake Ellington, whose music will be played this weekend by the Duke Ellington Orchestra in the "Ailey Celebrates Ell-ington" series at the New York State Theater.

The younger Mr. Ellington made the comparison be cause, as of the opening of the series on Tuesday, he did not, know what Ellington compositions the orchestra, which he now heads, would which he now heads, would be playing this weekend for several of Mr. Ailey's dances. But Mercer is used to such deadline hugging. His father invariably was writing right up to the last possible mo-ment, even putting the fin-ishing touches on a piece while his orchestra was as-sembling onstage. sembling onstage.

"Pop had a superstition." Mercer went on. "He never wrote the finale for a show until the day the show was going to open. For the three musicals for which he wrote scores—Jump for Joy' in 1941, "Beggar's Holiday' in 1946 and "My People' in the mid-80's — the finales were staged on the afternoons of their openings."

Spectrum of Ellingtonia

The Ellington music to which Mr. Ailey's troupe will dance this weekend covers the full spectrum of Ellingtothe full spectrum of Lingto-nia, from one of his early classics, "The Mooche," writ-ten in 1928, to his final work, "The Three Black Kings," un-finished when the Duke died in 1974 but since completed in 1974 but since completed by his 57-year-old son. The programs include pop hits ("Caravan"), piano solos (in-cluding "Reflections in D") and extended works, notably "Liberian Suite" and "Deep South Suite."

Tonight's performance of Mr. Alley's choreography for "Three Black Kings" (desig-nated by the elder Mr. Ellington as Solomon, Balthazar and Martin Luther King Jr.) is listed as a premiere. How-ever, it was performed as an out-of-town tryont, along with several other Ellington pieces, by the Ailey company and the Ellington orcoestra from July 7 to July 11 at Art Park in Lewiston, N.Y.

"When Alvin told me he had this date in Lewiston,". Mercer recalled, "I was loath to take the job. I said the band would need a week's rehearsal. But we did it in one day. We rehearsed that day for seven hours. And each of the next days we re-hearsed for six hours and then played for a performance. Alvin was amazed that we could do it." The version of "The Three Black Kings" that will be played tonight will not be the finished collaboration between father and son. In addition to developing a finale in which the major themes are reprised, Mercer Ellington put in a section for two tenor saxophone solos, back to back. When Mr. Ailey began his rebearsals, he worked from a variety of taped hits of the work and, according to Mercer Ellington, there was some confusion about what went where. In these circumstances, Mr., Ailey felt that the two saxophone solos were not defined. enough so they were omitted. Tonight's program will also include "The River," danced by the American Ballet Thea-ter, and conducted by Tibor Pusztai of the Ballet Theater, "Reflections in D," a plano solo transcribed from the Duke's recording, "Night Creature," a work composed by Mr. Ellington in the mid-50's for the Symphony of the Air, and "Caravan." Ailey, the Duke And '3 Kings'

day night at 7 P.M. Tonight as well, Mr. Wilhams performs "Reflections in D," the first work-Mr. Alley created to Ellington music. Mr. Thompson dances this 1961 solo tomorrow afternoon (Mr. Williams repeats it at Sunday's 1 P.M. matinee). "I think of it as a poem," Mr. Thompson said. Anyone who sees this Ailey classic-with its spare, angular but emo-tional intense choreographywill understand what he means. Both tonight and tomorrow night, the American Ballet Theater will perform a guest spot by dancing "The River," a ballet that has been in that company's repertory since 1971. Ballet Theater commissloned both the Ellington score and Mr. Ailey's choreography. It is a collaboration that Mr. Ailey defines as one of the most stimulating experiences of his life. -The Ailey-Ellington relationship goes back many years. Not unfancifully, Mr. Alley suggests it goes back to the time Mr. Ellington was unaware of the younger dancer's existence. "Duke Ellington was a role model to kids in the black community," Mr. Ailey ex-plained. "As a teen-ager I saw him as a God figure. He was part of our psyche." 'Liberian Suite' Mr. Ailey was introduced briefly to Mr. Ellington in the early 1950's when the composer visited the Los Angeles studio of Lester Horton, Mr. Alley's dance mentor. Mr. Horton had just created "Liberian Suite" to Mr. Ellington's score commemorating Liberian independence. (A revised version of the ballet will be given Sunday after-1000IL.)

In 1963, Mr. Ellington asked Mr. Alley and Talley Beatty to choreograph por-tions of "My People," a pro-duction with a cast of 200 that Mr. Ellingtoo had conceived as a mammoth celebration of the Emancipation Proclamation.

There was a two-layered stage," Mr. Alley recalled. "He had Takey and me choreograph to the same piece of music without telling me. I was the one on the upstairs level."

Mr. Ellington kept up his interest in Mr. Ailey's work. When the choreographer performed his classic "Revelations", at Clark Center, housed in the now defunct Eighth Avenue YWCA, Mr. Ellington came to see it. "After that I saw him occasionally," Mr. Ailey said.

"I would see him perform at the Rainbow Grill The next time we got together was when Lucia Chase [American Ballet Theater's co-director] asked me to do The River." As Mr. Ailey tells it, Mr.

Ellington's original scenario for the ballet differed mark-edly from its present theme of rebirth.

"He wanted to do a comic ballet about a man who couldn't smile. I think he had Nixon in mind. There would be all these jugglers and jesters trying to make this king smile. Finally, he looks in a mirror and cracks up. "But I said, I'm terrible at comic ballet; I have another idea, about a life cycle."

What Mr. Ailey did not know was that Mr. Ellington wrote music in snippets. thought I would get 12 pieces of music and then I'll start to work," he said. "But I got one page and then another. One day I found I had all this rehearsal time and no music. I got furious and threw my notebook down.

"I opened the door and it was perfect timing in walks Duke and his entourage and hands me a tape of the complete score. "'I don't know what you're ranting and raving about, man,' he said. He had just been in the recording studio with the band. That's how he really composed. In the recording studio, on the spot. He walked around like a king. He was a wonderful man

In Mr. Ailey's view, a high-light of the entire festival will be tomorrow's and Sunday's performances by the Alvin Ailey Repertory Workshop, a junior group that shares the program with the senior Ailey company Sylvia Waters, the Workshop's artistic director, selected five younger black choreographers to create the premieres and Mr. Alley says: They will have a fresher viewpoint on the Ellington music than I do."

At 2 P.M. tomorrow, the program leads off with "New

Miss Waters said, "It's sultry warm jazz music and he has treated it that way." In contrast, Gus Solo-mons Jr.'s "Forty" has "very linear movement." Mr. Solo-mons, a well-known avantgardist who danced with Merce Cunningham, choreo-graphed the work before hearing the music.

The Sunday matinee program has "Still Life," in which Christine Lawson, a former member of Mr. Alley's origi-nal troupe, has used "the: nal troupe, has used "the Newport Jazz Festival sound" to try to "freeze a moment in time." THE 23RD CENTURY

- ED CARPET THEATRES EVERYWHERE!

The Morris-Bolcom collections suffer from a certain sweet pallicity on the part of Miss Morris. Her voice is nelther so ravishingly beautiful that it quiets all compar-isons, nor so forceful of personality that it matches the imagined sound of stars like Miss Tanguay or Lillian Russell.

Still, Mr. Bolcom is full of rhythmic energy and resilience at the keyboard, and the songs themselves still speak touchingly through Miss Morris's interpretations. The 29 songs on these two disks offer a wide range of what white America held dear during this period. There are sentimental ballads galore, topped by "After the Ball," with its tale of the lonely old bachelor telling his niece how he spurned the girl of his dreams when he caught her embracing a man who-many years later-turned out to be her brother. Often as not, the sentimeotality drips over into the downright maudon, as in "In the Baggage Coach Ahead," by the black composer Gussie L. Davis, in which a grieving widower, babe in arms, explains to teary travelers the location of his late wife's corpse.

If you want to start with just one of these records, try the first, "After the Ball," which contains a few more well-known songs than the second. But both are charmers, and serve equally well as lessons in popular history and simple, pleasurable musical experiences.

Neil Diamond's concerts tonight through Sunday at the Forest Hills Stadium mark not only his return to the New York concert circuit after nearly four years, but also the return of concerts to the 14,400-seat Queens facility after a five-year hiatus.

The stadium, part of the West Side Tennis Club. is in the midst of a well-to-do community, and the Forest Hills Gardens Corporation grew increasingly restive at the bordes of young people parking their cors oo lowos and trompiog through the area. Five years ago there was a double murder at a concert, and music making there was prohibited.

The Diamond concerts came about after Ron Delsener, the promoter, convinced the local board that Mr. Diamond's was an "adult-orientated show." Nothing more is planned at the stadium this summer, adds the promoter, who began his music-business career there in 1964 as an assistant to Don Friedman and Bill Gruman. But both the tennis club and the Gardens Corporation stand to profit from shows there, and if this weekend's concerts go well, Mr. Delsener hopes to book such attractions as Shirley Bassey, Frank Sinatra, John Denver, Barbra Streisand and Mr. Diamond there next summer.

The Copacabana, closed and empty for several years, will reopen Oct. 15. The famous nightclub, once one of New York's most glamorous sbowcases for cabaret entertainers, will be a disco with some live acts. The new owners, who are reportedly refurbishing the place to its former luster, are also talking about using the club as a base for television shows.

our tender crops. A friendly race to barvest the year's first sweet corn inevitably arises betweeo gardening neighbors. The fair-weather vegetable garden suffers from a well-entrenched case of earlyitis. Then, once the lettuce has bolted in the summer heat and the first-io-theground radishes have grown proportions and texture more suitabla for pulpwood thap crunching, the produce patch rests on its owner's laurels.

The bountiful harvest is brought to the table. Eating becomes the pastime, and planting passe, it would have been nice to have some fresh lettuce with the tomatoes, but, of course, as we all know, it's too warm for lettuce in August.

And so it is, for the mature lettuce plant-but not for starting new seedlings. Plant-ed this weekend, the young seedlings will gain a good warm-weather start and in the cooler days of September you'll have a bumper crop of salad greens to go with your tomatoes. Plant leaf lettuce. Most head lettuce such as Bibb, Buttercrunch, and Iceberg need from 70 10 90 days until they mature, and it's proba-bly oushing your luck a bit to try these oow. The easyto-grow leaf varieties, how-ever, such as Black-Seeded Simpson. Oak Deaf, and Salad Bowl will crop out in 40 days or so. With the same temporal consideration in mind, you can choose something like Ruby lettuce, which develops large ruffled leaves shaded to a deep, al-most purple red, a novelty both tasty and colorful in a salad bowl.

Weekend Gardening

Radish is another vegeta-ble that gets the short end of the gardening season because of its reputation for going to seed in warm mooths, Granted, my midseason radishes are begioniog to look like a bouquet delivered by wire, but the ones I plant this weekend will be ready to relish by Labor Day. Red varieties such as Cherry Belle take only 22 days to maturity: white ones such as Icicle, 25 days. Try some in that unused row where the peas were planted earlier this summer

There also are black ra-dishes, of the Spanish rouod variety usually found for purchase only in ethnic markets. Black radish is one of the best storage crops available. Harvest the 3-inch to 4-inch globes 50 to 65 days after sowing, preferably after a night of light frost. Store the roots, unwashed, and buried, in a box of moist sand. The box, in turn, should be kept in a cool place such as ao unheated garage or basement.

A consistent temperature in the 30's is ideal. The sand must remain moist throughout the storage period, or the roots will shrivel and dry out. For the same reasoo, the tops of the radishes must be removed before the tasty part is stored away. If you are a perfectionist, dip the green leaf stubs remaining on the radish in wax to further minimize moisture loss

Sand storaga works well for such other root crons as beets, carrots, and rutabagas. But lacking a cool spot in-doors to store the roots doesn't mean you have to eat the whole batcb before winter sets in. Root crops can be left right in the garden-it's a perfectly natural root cel-

The main reason most gardeners don't use it as such, I've always suspected, is that they feel strongly conspicu-ous digging around in their vegetable patch while their OF SO. neighbor is shoveling soow off the driveway. Trying to dig up a turnip when the ground is frozen can be tryiog. But to make life easier if you are using the in-garden cold cellar, cover your rows with a foot-deep mulch of straw or leaves held in place with covering lengths of chicken wire. The mulch will keep the garden soil

The winter crop par excellence is turnips, for their flavor actually improves with reezing weather. Perhaps the most versatile variety is the classic old Shogoin, also koown as the foliage turnip. In 30 days you harvest tasty greens; in 50, the roots. If turnip greens aren't your idea of a gourmet dish and you're in a rush for the real thing, try Tokyo Cross Hybrid, You'll have snow-white 2-incb globes io 35 days, and roots up to 6 inches across you wait to harvest until full maturity at 70 days. Spinach is a crop that far too often is considered only in terms of early spring planting. Yet most varieties mature in about 45 days and do well planted for a September harvest, timiog it well for salad combination with those late-ripening tomatoes on the windowsill. Varieties such as Winter Bloomsdale can be sown even as late as the end of August or early September. Cover the young plants with a beavy laver of mulch to hold them over the winter and, come spring, you can unpack your instant vegetables and begin to har-vest them in a mere week

It's Mostly a Tour in a Gilded Age

By JENNIFER DUNNING

"... how much every com monplace abode in this city has to tell of the tragedy and comedy of life that has passed within it-how little passed within it now little there is in a world of men that is not far from common-place or insignificant in it-self or its associations. How serious a thing is in any row of monotonous twenty-five-foot brick fronts, if one con-siders what each of them has witnessed or will witness So wrote George Templeton Strong oo April 2, 1850. The Museum of the City of New York's Sunday Walking Tours, now in their 17th year, are dedicated to the same contemplation of the city's buried history, both personal and public. This Sunday, the museum will follow in Strong's footsteps with its tour, Madison Square-The World of Edith Wharton and George Templeion Strong.".

Edith Wharton, novelist and short-story writer, lived from 1862 to 1937, spending most of her later life abroad. But much of her work chronicled the conformist opper strata of old New York society, from which she came, the New York of the late 19th and early 20th centuries. She is best known for "Ethan Frome," "The House of Mirth." "Old New York" and "The Age of Innocence," for which she won a Pulitzer Prize io 1921.

George Templeton Strong never achieved Wharton's fame, but his diaries of New York life between 1835 and 1875 are valuable social rec-ords of the time. He lived from 1820 to 1875 and was active not only as a lawyer, but in the political, religious and artistic issues of the day. He served as a member of the Sanitary Commission, a civic group that assisted wounded War soldiers in the field, and he helped to shape Columbia University as one of its most progressive trustees. He moved in the same world as Wharton's parents and, like her, recorded its manners and mores.

Beginning in the 1840's and coming to an eod with the commercialization of the neighborhood in the late 1880's, Madison Square was the site of the residences. stores and churches of the most fashionable members of New York society. The area's socially accepted boundaries were from 29th Street several blocks to the east and west of Fifth Avenue to Stuyvesant Square and several blocks to its weet.

A Sense of Immediacy

The guides are all wellversed in architectural his-tory and some, like David Kahn, even carry such props as books or artifacts of the period to lend the tour a sense immediacy. For very little of is left intact of the worlds that Strong and Wharton depicted so ocutely: the elegance of a William B. Astor or Hamiltoo Fish, or the effete existence of Gen-eral Scole, in Wharton's "The Spark," an old gentle-man with manners "so perfect that they stood him in lieu of language."

Everywhere in the area however, are telltale signs of what was known as the Gilded Age, for those who know how and where to look. "There are churches aod a few buildings that evoke this interesting period." Mr. Kahn says. "But it's much harder here to read the urban fabric."

Madison Square is rich io 19th-century literary legend. Horace Greeley kept a goat in his backyard on East 19th Street. On sunny days, Herman Melville took his granddaughter for walks across the square. Henry James, William Dean Howells, Oscar Wilde and Stephen Crane all spent part of their lives here. The area has figured little in their works but Strong and Wharton were its recorders -Strong writing with the compassion and humor of the insider, and Wharton with the irony of one who has accepted exclusion. Neither the Little Church on 29th Street, where the tour starts, nor the Marble Collegiate nearby, were the most fashionable churches of the time. Strong worshipped downtown at Trinity Church and Wharton at Calvary Church, on Park Avenue South and East 21st Street.

By mid-morning the air is fragrant with the smell of ripe produce and, as vendors and customers continue to stream in, the chatter is lively. Mothers push babies in strollers past bins of potatoes and beans and farmers pluck berries from their boxes for toddlers to sample. Shiny, dark green cucumbers and firm zucchini are available at two for a quarter and purple beets, long necked yellow squash, carrots and crimsoo eggplants turn the one-block, asphalt lot into a panorama of color.

chopped fresh green peppers, celery, onions and mushrooms but was heavy and greasy, and the shrimp tasted somewhat of iodine. Other sauce dishes-stroganoff, curries, paprika and so on-were more than just edible but lacked the sure hand of the American specialties.

Collards, black-eyed peas, rice and candied sweet potatoes are always on the menu as are the knockout desserts displayed on a huge buffet. Black walnut pie is a personal favorite with pecan as a close second. And though I do not really like layer cakes, I recognize the superiority of the black fudge layer masterpiece and the orange-scented Grand Marnier extravaganza. Fruit cobblers miss because their fruit is not fresh, even when in season. Drinks of all sorts and a minimum wine list are available, and prices are moderate, with entrees from $6.95 to $13.50, complete with salad, two vegetables and more corn bread than you can look at. Except for two consistent flaws, this place would deserve an excellent rating. Dishes are just a bit too greasy, and someone should take away the chef's sugar bits of sweetness slip in y to trip up unwary palates. Service here is extraordinarily courteous and sobcitous.

Barbetta's

During the last 15 or so years, I have been to Barbetta's, 321 West 46th Street, close to a dozen times and bave always come away with the same impression-disappointment that the place does not live up to its promise. Whether in the elegant interior dining room, with its rosebeige color scheme and teardrop crystal chandeliers, or in the romantic Roman garden, with its white umbrellas, bowers of greenery, candielight and garden statuary, ooe feels immediately that the management aspires to more than the usual Italian restaurant image.

The menu underlines that ambition with its interesting range of North Italian risotti, pasta specialties and entrees. But the first disappointment is the tone of the service always somewhat haughty and overbearing. Captains push the pretheater dinner without finding out if one is even going to the theater, and then they promote the most obvious and banal choices.

Having neutralized the help, one next invariably discovers that some of the most interesting menu selections are not available. In 10 tries, I have never been able to get gianchetti, tiny whitebaitlike fish, deep fried, as an appetizer, and on the last visit, at about 7:15 on a Friday night, they were also out of the thinly shaved raw beef hors d'oeuvre, carpaccio, and two of the four entrees ordered.

Three excellent appetizers turned out to be a subtly seasoned pickled eel, an interesting mixed antipasto with properly piquant marinated mushrooms and some tenderly moist and fresh, cold poached striped bass. While an order of risotto Plemontese was richly fragrant with the earthy, smoky scent of dried porcini mushrooms, the tortellini con panna was ruined by a stiffly cold pasta, a bland filling and a topping that seemed to be a floury cream sauce, rather than the gossamer blend of parmesan, botter and sweet. cream it should be

The same excellent-to-mediocre range was in evidence among the entrees. The calves liver in the fegato Veneziana was dry and hard, almost as though it bad been precooked, then slivered and sauteed to order, and veal paillard was tough, stringy and not seared, as it would be if broiled when ice cold. On the other hand, a crisply fried combination of brains and artichokes was excellent, while the medallions of beef with mushrooms were adequate.

None of the desserts lived up to their eye appeal. If prices here were half what they are, ooe might be more generous in rating the value. But at $20 or so a person for a full dinner, one has a right to expect much more.

Ye Waverly Inn

Set out on the garden floor of a 175-year-old town house in Greenwich Village, Ye Waverly Ion, at the corner of Waverly Place and Bank Street, represents one of the city's most reliable bargains. The interior has all of the more inviting aspects of a Colonial tavera; and the brightly pleasant garden with its painted white benches and tables. though partly covered against the elements, still offers a view of the sky filtered through the fanlike leaf patterns of spreading ailanthus branches.

Although there are usually a few Continental "fancy" choices on the menu, they are uniformly to be avoided. Stick to such American choices as the biscuit-crusted chicken pot pie; the masterpiece of crisp tenderness that is the fried chicken; the roast duck (without the fruit sauces), and the crackling roast pork loin. They are dependably satisfying. Not so the broiled fish, usually dry as dust, nor the steamy bland boneless chicken sauteed with lemon and garlic, nor the milky curried veal.

Interesting, well-prepared vegetable choices include zucchini simmered with tomatoes, fresh fried eggplant and carrots Vichy. The poorest selection is among appetizers, with two or three fair soups and a glass of V-8 being the only candidates. Desserts are simple and tea-roomy, though pleasant enough. Chocolate cake, lemon snow or rice pudding, ice cream sundaes, apple crunch, cheese and crackers are typical. There is a service bar here and a limited wine list. Prices for complete three-course dinners range from $5.95 to $8.95 for steak, with most choices in the $6.50 to $7.50 range.

which the Chief Executives set their tables, By this criterion, Rutherford B. Hayes and Chester A. Arthur would be among the nation's most memorable Presidents, while Abraham Lincoln and Franklin D. Roosevelt would be emicently forgettable. A chance to make your own evaluation is available through Sept. 5 at the Yale University Art Gallery in New Haven, where the Smithsonian Institution's traveling exhibition service is presenting a show of Presideotial china from George and Martha Washingtoo to Gerald and Betty Ford.

If tableware can be as much an index of personal style as, let us say, clothing, the exhibition presents some interesting reflections on the tastes of the oation's First Families in a display that for the first time offers, if not all the Presideot' menus, theo at least the porcelain on which they were served.

Among the revelations that have come out of the cupboard:

Thomas Jefferson may have been the genius of national independence, but he suffered a creative gap when it came to setting his table. He was no match for his archrival, John Adams, whose family was more perceptive and selec-tive in the process. Though the families of the second and third Presideots both selected cornflower-pattern porcelsin, the Adamses choice sparkles with charm while the Jefferson china is surprisingly dull.

Until the 20th century, American Presidents were not very patriotic about where they got their dinnerware. Virtually all of the services used in the White House up to Woodrow Wilson's election io 1912 were made either in China or in British, French or German factories. If Wilson aent American doughboys to Europe's shores, he kept Europe's dinnerware from his dining table, introducing cobalt and gilt-border Lennox china to White House state dinners. After this, the pressure increased for American producers to be represented in the White House:

American-Made Designs

Waving the flag, however, may not serve the interests of setting the table. The Lennox china design, as well as the equally unimaginative designs of narrow or wide borders chosen by later White House occupants such as the Franklin D. Roosevelts, the Harry S. Trumans and the Dwight D. Eisenhowers, are innocuous and show how dull design can be. The Lyndon B. Johnsoms, with the help of Tiffany's, did better, choosing a busier, livelier service; they also did far better with their own Mexican folk dinner-Wares.

The great Presideocies, io terms of tableware; were definitely Republicao, with Rutherford B. Hayes and Chester Arthur leading the way. The Hayes family is considered to have dined on the most memorable china of all. Those who have seen the tableware are understandably captivated by the arresting conceptions designed by the artist Theo-dore R. Davis: snowshoe-decorated ice cream plates, duckembellished platters and shell-indented oyster dishes.

A strong supporter of the Hayes candidacy for tops in tableware is Betty Ford.

"At family dinners," writes Mrs. Ford in her foreword to the catalogue of the 'American Presidential China" show, "we eojoy using different Presidential porcelain services. Our family favorite is the Rotherford B. Haves service with all the realistic plant and animal designs." To prove that Mrs. Ford is not simply partial to Republi-cans, she also writes that "for separate courses and other occasions" she bas also used dinner plates chosen by Mrs. Grover Cleveland, whose busband was a Democrat. The Fords have also made bipartisan selections in their use of the Abraham Lincoln, Benjamin Harrison and Franklin D. Roosevelt services.

Arthurian Exuberance

The other Presidential cootender for White House dinnerware honors is Chester A, Arthur. Next to Hayes, it is the Arthur china that appears to show most originality. President Arthur's dinners reputedly cost a fortune, and he served 14 courses employing the exuberant floral and geometric pattern wares he ordered for the White House when he invited Louis Comfort Tiffany to redecorate the Presidential quarters.

Солл., Greenwich, 81 affluent suburban community, has mounted something of a treasure hunt. Judiciously placed around the town, in lush green parks overlooking streams and harbor, along gracious tree-lined streets and bustling houtique-lined thoroughfares, are first-class works of modern sculpture living with the town.

A dream two years ago when the Greenwich Arts Council debated what it could offer as a Bicentennial project, the show, Sculpture '76, was envisioned as a celebration of the contemporary creative spirit. Greenwich, the council had decided, had dready paid due homage to its long and fruitful history. It was time to glorify the esent through the works of creation living artists. It chose 15. Most of the sculptors represented in the show came to Greenwich to select their sites and place their pieces. In at least three cases-works by Forrest Myers, Athena Tacha and Richard Fleischner-the where it came from. "The Mitt" is in front of the Greenwich Public Libra-ry, the recommended starting art was born on-site as the sculptors worked into the local settings with the aid of point for the sculpture tour, Greenwich students. Two others - Lila Katzen and George Segal-designed their pieces for the settings they had chosen. The result was a rare adventure both for the Connecticut Turnpike, get off at Exit 4, turn left onto Indian Field Road, and turn the sculptors and the town, many of whose residents had slight familiarity with massive, modern sculpture.

It is not unusual to spot Greenwich residents abruptly stopping in their paths to touch or to admire the art that has been loanad to them. "I don't know bow to say it—it's eye-catching," says Frank Rogowski, 65 years old, explaining why he had been stooping underneath George Rickey's plece to tap the polisbed stainless steel. "Every time I come by I sit and look at it. I'd like to have it in my front yard." The sculpture, "Two Lines Oblique Var. IV," 1969-73, lent to the show hy Mr. Rickey, moves slowly with the wind in a constant act of re-

Sculptures for Sale Lydia Anderson, project director for the show, says it "gives me shivers" when calls come to the office asking whether individual pieces are · Another work that has evoked enthusiastic comment, for sale. Some are for sale, in fact, at estimated prices that range from $8,000 to Claes Oldenburg's "Mitt with Ball," 1973, will go, when the show is over, to a Greenwich $160,000.

"It means people are look-ing and are interested," said Mrs. Anderson, explaining resideot's backyard, which is why such queries make her glow. "It's the greatest re-ward that we could bave." Another reward that the

which requires a car or a particularly sturdy pair of town will have, if the council has its way, is at least one work from the show as the feet. (To reach the library by beginning of a permanent collection. Because no tax money went toward the enterprise, the council had to raise $35,000 to mount the showthrough grants from Connec-ticut's American 'Revolution Bicentennial Commission and Commission of the Arts and through donations from corporations and individuals.

Now, however, the council is seeking funds toward the purchase of one of the pieces and is informally polling the community for its prefereoces. Among the choices are works by Alexander Calder, Tony Smith, Charles Ginnever and Willem de Kooning, to name a few.

"I'd like to see it as a permanent fixture of the park," said Richard Detmer, 22 years old, referring to Forrest Myers's curving maze of dif-ferent colored metal pipes, in the middle of Corosicity the middle of Greeowich Common. "It expresses a lot of freedom to me. I look through it and see shapes in the sky and trees."

At Roger Sherman Baldwin Park, the viewer can look through Miss Katzen's Priapos to see a still-life of hoats moored in the harbor. "I think it's super," said

Kathy Oztemel, 26, eating a picnic luoch nearhy. "I'm not trying to figure out what they are, hut I just love them all."

> About 15-years-ago, on ber first visit to Britain as an artist visit to britain as an artist rather than an emigré, she met Roy Guest who ran a tiny club in Edinburgh called the Howff (which means the den). He told her he would love to have ber in his club but he couldn't afford her. Miss Schlamme offered to come at her own expense. She opened the night before the official open-ing of the Edinburgh Festival.

"The press was there for the festival," she recalled, "hut they had nothing to do that night so they came to hear me. They went crazy. I was a star overnight. I was on television almost every day and in 10 days I made £300, which was big money

Later, Mr. Guest, on a visit to the United States, phoned Miss Schlamme. "I found you another Howff," be told her.

then."

His discovery was a tiny empty theater on St. Marks

Place next door to the Five Spot, tha jazz club. Tania Chasman, Miss Schlamme's manager and pianist, sug-gested that she do an all-Weill program there. Miss Schlamme was reluctant to do a whole evening alone. But she had beard Will Holt singing Weill with his own guitar accompaniment and she broached the idea to him.

"We were both very suspicious," she grinned. "We had such different stylesthis Viennese person with a very German background wbile Will was so American. But I thought maybe that difference would make for a pungent combination."

Mr. Holt wrote a continuity for a sbow called "The World of Kurt Weill." It was a great success at the little theater on St. Marks Place (named the Howff in honor of the original), so successful that it was moved to the larger room at Sberidan Square that once had been Cafe Society. It closed only when Miss Schlamme had to leave for some concert commitments. Another Partner

Several years later, in 1966, when Miss Schlamme was looking for another pariner to do a Weill program, Mark Epstein, the director, recommended his brother, Alvio, who was teaching, acting and directing at Yale. "I called Alvin on the telephone," Miss Schlamme recalled, "and I loved that voice right away." The new team gave its first reformance at the Ravinia Festival in Chicago. They were asked to open the Yale Cabaret in 1966 and they have continoed to do the program off and on ever since.

At Yale she met Arvin Brown, artistic director of the Long Wharf Theater in New Haven who offered her a part in the American premier of Gorky's "Country People." She was given a contract with the company for a year and stayed for three years. She built such a following as an actress in New Haven that when she gave a concert, there were surprised comments: "Oh, she sings, too,'

One day she was asked to talk to the students at Hamden High School, near New Haven. Afterward, an English teacher told her. "you're a born teacher." and she was asked to give a 10week coarse of scene studies. This led to her teaching at Adelphia College, the Philadelphia Musical Academy and at a seminar on "performance" at Yale. Today, with all this, a career that, to her, had seemed to have limitations appear to have no limits

THE NEW YORK TIMES, FRIDAY, AUGUST 13, 1976

NOTHER MIL LIONAIRE IN DUTCHESS" was the headline in The Poughkeepsie Sunday Courier of May 12, 1895, over a story reportingthat Frederick William Vanderbilt, the grandson of Commodore Vanderbilt, had bought an estate overlooking the Hudson river at Hyde Park in Dutchess County. The influx of men of great wealth joining the landed gentry already in residence along the river had an unpredictable side effect: Their drive to build grandiose parttime mansions with extensive grounds, gardens and farms served to preserve and protect the scenic beanty of the Hudson Valley from commercial and residential developmeot.

Their legacy—a magnificant stretch of riverfront estates ranging from the baronial Vanderhilt mansion to the large, comfortable home of the Roosevelts-is now a major tourist attraction in the oortheast, close enough to the New York Metropolitan region for a one-day visit or a more leisurely two-day weekend

Only 80 miles from Manhattan, a two-hour drive, Hyde Park is desperately trying to retain its small town, rural character while at the same time cater to hundreds of thousands of tourists each year. Local resideots, who have organized a Hyde Park Visual Environmeot Committee, are worried about coogestion along Route 9, the two-lane major northsouth traffic artery, although they recognize the necessity for motels and restaurants. For the visitor, however, Hyde Park is still a modest. town with many of the amenities of smallness. There are few lines at the major attractions, and parking is free and relatively easy. In an eight-mile stretch along Route 9, there are ample opportunities to enjoy

-without pushing or crowd-ing the same river sites that President Roosevelt back to Hyde Park each sum-mer, to wonder at the extravagences of the Gilded Age and to learn something about the role of the Hudson River in the history of the state and the nation. From south to north, all additional 75 cents (with earphones for two, $1.25). Outside the house, there are nature trails leading down toward the Hudson River, with a printed guide showing how available, Roosevelt adapted some of his conservation ideas on his own property.

F.D.R. Library

The first of the six presidential libraries now in existance, the F.D.R. Library and Museum, all in one flagstone huilding, was opened to the public in 1941. The library section is open only to re-searchers and scholars, but the museum is open to all from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. daily (except Christmas Day) with an admissioo charge of 50 cents for each visitor over 16. In the museum, among the displays that attract special attention are Roosevelt's White House desk, his ship models, his bomemade wheelchair, gifts from heads-of-state, pictures from various stages of bis career, public papers showing corrections in his own handwriting and, of course, the numerous cartoons of him, his tilted cigarette holder and of Fala. The newest edition to the museum, the Eleanor Roosevelt Wing, was opened in 1972. It contains items from her wardrobe, the White House china and pictures of the children, as well as momentos of her work in the United Nations.

The opening of the display is marked by a crystal, engraved with her hands, bearing the words of Adlai E.

of the Hudson, there are three major attractions, each worth a leisurely tour-the Franklin D. Roosevelt home and museum, the Vanderbilt Mansion and the Mills Mansion—as well as an art museum and a theater.

Roosevelt Home

The house where Franklin D. Roosevelt was born (in 1882) and raised has a livedin, family look-unlike the more formal atmosphere of the Vanderbilt Mansion. It was here that Roosevelt brought his bride, Eleanor, in 1905, it was bere that they raised their five children, it was here that be returned after his political campaigns aod it was here that he was buried in the family rose garden in 1945. It was also here that his wife oever felt at home; she regarded it as the domain of ber mother-in-law, Sara Delano Roosevelt, aod feit the atmosphere to be oppressive.

That feeling is conveyed to visitors through the secood floor of the house, where Eleanor's tiny bedroom is squeezed in between the larger and more commodius rooms of her hushand and his mother. But most visitors are impressed by the intimate quality of the house although it served as the summer White House for many years. But before that it was the home of the Roosevelt family, and the visitor can see portraits, for example, of Isaac Roosevelt, the President's greatgreat-grandfather, who was active in the Revolutionary War, and his great-grandfa-ther James, who in 1819 was the first of the family to set-tle io Dutchess County.

Of interest also are Franklin Roosevelt's tiny boyhood bedroom, the leash and blan-ket of his dog, Fala, in the master bedroom, the Dresden chandelier in a room near the dining room and the birds he collected when he was a hoy. The home, a national historic site administered by the National Park Service, is open seven days a week, from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. with an admission charge of 50 cents (which also includes admission to the Vanderbilt Mansion). Admission is free for those under 18 years of age and those over 62.

lo addition, a cassette de-scription of the house in the words and voice of Eleanor Roosevelt is available for ao er light a candle than curse the darkness, and her light has warmed the world."

A group of Mrs. Roosevelt's admirers has organized a committee to try to purchase Val-Kill, her retreat from the Roosevelt bome, several miles inland. It was there that she and some friends organized a furniture factory in the late 1920's and it was there that she felt at bome herself. Val-Kill is now privately owned and not open to the public.

Vanderbilt Mansion

A visit to the Vanderbilt Mansion and estate offers a journey into the opulence of the Gilded Age. Once the country home of Frederick W. Vanderbilt and his wife, Louise, the three-story man-sion, built of Indiana limestope in Italian Renaissance style, was completed in 1398. The total cost of all construction and improvements for the property has been esti-mated at $2,2 million, at e. time when a man worked all day for $1. The 54-room lavishly fur-nished mansioo was the scene of many gala parties, hut it was occupied only part of the time. The Vanderbilts went to New York for the opera and social season, to Palm Beach for March and April, to Hyde Park for the early summer, then to New-

As a change of pace, the Edwin A. Ulrich Museum, about two miles north of Hyde Park center and about a mile north of the Vanderbilt Mansioo exit on. Route 9, is a small, private, unpre-tentious huilding owned and operated by Mr. Ulrich. Now 79 years old, Mr. Ulrich, a former oil distributor in Poughkeepsie, devotes full time to his collection of paintings of three generations of the Waugh Family.

The walls of his home, Wavecrest, are filled with seascapes and other paintings of Samuel Bell Waugh (1814-1884), his son, Frederick Judd Waugh (1861-1940) and his grandson Coultoo Waugh (1896-1973). Also available are biographies of the paint-ets, slides and how-to books hy the youngest Waugh and others.

Mr. Ulrich cares for his collection himself and is de-lighted to stop and explain hnw he became interested io the Waughs (he was a class-mate of Coulton's), why he is collecting them (because they're good and he likes them), bow he maintains the museum (with bis own funds -no foundatioo grants), and how he started the Edwin A. T IS NO SECRET that James A, Pike was at times in his life an adulterer, an alcoholic, a heretic, a two-time loser at marriage, a frequenter of dubious seances and a public liar. His first wife went off with another man; his second wife locked him aut of bis official residence; his son and mistress committed suicide, and a daughter attempted it.

He was also chaplain and chairman of the department of religion at Columbia Univer-sity, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and Episcopal Bishop of California. His Sunday televisloo show was for years o fixture on ABC. He collaborated on a book that came as close as any could to articu-lating the credo of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America, and be wrote numerous other popular books on religion. He dcnounced Joseph R. McCarthy from his pulpit when the junior Seoator from Wisconsin was riding high; he refused a degree from a church college because it did not admit blacks in the 1950's, and he opposed the Vietnam Wsr (ooe cause be came late to, incidentally). His name made the newspapers frequeotly with the tag "controversial" or even "hotly controversial" routinely attached, like an honorific (or dishonorific). Conservatives in his church detested him (one wrnte him, when his son committed suicide, "Thank" God; one less Pike"), while radical religious thinkers found him shallow or doctrioally complacent.

A "hot" personality, then, in the McLuhan sense, crackling with negative aod positive charges. His celebrity gathered to it a cloud of notoriety that put in the shadow some rather commonplace virtues, coosiderable talents, both iotellectual and pastoral, and per-haps even greatoess of soul, if his admittedy friendly biographers, William Stringfellow and Anthony Towne, are to be believed. Their biography is actually a welter cf crosscurrents—part apologia, part spiritual. brief, part act of homage and part rutbless act of candor. They concede right away that their friendship for Bishop Pike disqualifies them from objectivity; further, they reject a cooventiooal chronology, weaving their narrative around recurring threads in Pike's life, and what they call the "redundancies" that marked his faith. They begin with their subject's death in 1969, while wandering lost in the Judean desert, then jump shout among the bizarre and tragic events of Pike's last years, especially the suicides of his son, Jim Jr., and his mistress, Maren Bergrud, which involved him with a curious crew of spiritualists, who exploited his fame at the same time as they exploited the credulousness arising out of Pike's guilt and bafflemen! over his soo's death.

Reporting these events io considerable detail, the suthors also interweave interviews with friends, colleagues and Pike's mother, and make glanciog references to the church controversies he was embroiled in and which resulted in his censure, his later anathematizatioo ond, ultimately, resignatico. This impressignistic-or associational-continuity is. not surprisingly, confusing to the reader, and implaots an esthetic longing for a straightforward narrative in which events flow into their consequences. Still, there is much fas-cinating reporting in this section, which casts new light on these events-not always flattering to Pike.

For example, the authors pierce the veil of cover-up Pike hastily threw over the messy suicide of his mistress, Maren Bergrud (ar former mistress-and that was the problem). former mistress—and that was the problem). This included tearing off part of the ootc she left. Since they print the missiog part of the note in their book, it is obvious that Pike kept it—for what future use we can only speculate. Certainly, he told his third wife, Diane Kennedy Pike, the whole story, and when he tolked should superior but while he tolked when be talked about eventually writing bis autobingraphy, he always mentioned what the title would be, "Notbing to Hide." In the long run, he hid little, though, as John May-nard Keynes said io another coonection, "In the long run we are all dead." Still, he openly confessed his alcoholism in 1964, swore aff and Jained Alcohalics Anonymous. His drinking, which had resulted in some bumptious public scenes, as well as coosiderable private travail to his wife aod children, was apparently covered up by his church, though it was leading him to trouble. Ironically, one of his worst enemies in the church, the man of the cloth who first leveled the charges of heresy against him (later dropped in favor of a censure resolutioo), was also a whisky priest. Pike knew this, refused to allow it to be made public after the charges were made (even though, as the authors assert, they probably originated in the bottle) and was privately a loving friend to the mao.

That is perhaps sufficient to limn the picture of James A. Pike, sinner, i.e., human being, and occasional hypocrite. Much of the notoriety of his last years arose out of the heresy accusations, which Pike kept in the public eye by seizing on the opportunity to debate with his critics. The whole idea of heresy the authors contend was ultra vircs on the part of the high church body that considered it. The real motivation was the desire of church conservatives to punish Pike for his "radical" views (actually, the Messrs. Stringfellow and Townes assert, Pike was something of a doctrinal conservative; he simply had to tear beliefs apart and put them back together again, rather than accept on authority). In the last part of the book, the authors proceed somewhat more conventionally, as they assess James A. Pike as a church figure aod a Christian. His chief service os churchman was "apologist"—a brilliant popularizer, who used his formidable public persona ta draw attention to worthy bellefs. As for Pike the Christlan, at the end of his life he became more disillusioned with the church temporal aod more chsessed with the Idea of locating the "historical Jesus." As the authors put It, "As James A. Pike became less and less religious, it can be said that be became more and more Christian." In the tumult of their narrative, they omit to cite either works or expressions of faith as evideoce for this assertion, but let it stand as the convictioo of two friends. lo aoy case, Pike's search for the historical Jesus took him to the Judean wilderoess, where he made his last impulsive trip with his wife (who miraculously escaped) in a rented car equipped with a rudimentary map and two bottles of Coca-Cola. Bridge:

Perhaps a dozen of them are expert players in their own right, and they suffer from ao unexpected occupational hazard: they have very little apportunity to play the game themselves on a serious level. At national tournaments they are engaged in directing and oragnizing, and cannot themselves try for national bonors.

A case in poiot is Henry Francis a multitalented man who is in the first class as an organizer, an editor, a writer, a player and a tournament director. For the last five years he has edited the league's monthly bulletin with grest distinction. During the Summer Nationals in Salt Lake City last week, he took time off from his writing and editing duties to play in a minor event, and showed his defensive ability on the diagramed deal.

North-South reach a reasonable contract, but South's bidding left something to be desired. His first bid of one spade, was unobjectionable, but be should have bid two no-trump at his next turn. This probably would have encouraged North to jump to four spades. Even if North-South had agreed that the two-spade bid promised fourcard support-a highly dubious agreement-the jump to four spades was overoptimis-

The singleton heart queen in the dummy proved to be significant when that suit was led, for three honors appeared on the first trick, leaving the jack a winner in the closed hand. There was no advantage in taking a quick discard, so South's first move was to lead a trump to dummy's queen.

There was some temptation for Francis as East to win this trick and underlead his club ace. This would have giveo the declarer a guess, but in view of the vulnerable overcail he would probably have guessed right. If he had put up the club king, he could have emerged with an overtrick by discarding the club jack from dumny oo the heart...jack and leading the dlamood queen.

East did better by ducking guess where the high cards 1wo.

The club jack was led from dummy, ann again Francis resisted the temptatioo to snatch an early trick. He ducked hopefully, but South guessed right by puttiog up the king.

The club seven was discarded on the heart jack, and it might seem that East had ducked ance too often, for the defenders' club trick, had disappeared. The positioo was now this:

The right play for South at this point was the diamond queen, which would have brought home the contract. But South was confused by East's ducking maneuvers and led a second trump, a play that offered very little hope.

Francis took his two trump wioners and played a heart to force the dummy. It would not have helped the declarer to refuse to ruff, for the defense would have played clubs.

South ruffed the haert lead and cashed the diamond ace in the faint hope that the king would fall singleton. When this failed the defenders took tha diamood king and two club tricks for down

New MacInnes Thriller Has Old Familiar Look

AGENT IN PLACE. By Hilen Macinnes. 339 pages. New York: Haroourt Brace Jouanovich_ $8.95.

Ever since Sax Rohmer exploited fears of the "yel-low peril," the spy novel has thrived on a Manichean world view, positiog an alien Them threatening and ultimately defeated by a do-mestic Us. But then along came the political relativism and moral ambiguity of writers like John le Carré and Len Deightoo, who por-trayed (more, realistically, some thought) the world of cootemporary espiooage as a sort of self-perpetuatiog game of natioos manipulated by cynical, amnral bureaucrats oo both sides.

Though Helen Maclunes is far too sophisticated a writer to batteo on old-style Manicheanism, she remains something of a traditional-ist in the field, retaioing characters who, however brightly drawn, still divide up into Us and Them.

There are usually vaguely donnish heroes and the charming young couple en-meshed in sinister danags, who employ amateur pluck and hurb to defeat the and luck to defeat the enemy. WNEW-TV (Channel 5) has chosen the summertime, when the competition is easy, to introduce the series that promises to be the jewel of its new schedule, "Fall of Eagles." A sumptuous production of the British Broadcasting Corporation, it has been sold here to com-mercial television rather than to the Public Broadcasting Service and has its premiere Sunday: Otherwise, this weekend is mildly saturated with news specials previewing the Republican National Convention in Kansas City, which opens Monday.

Friday

With a special ooe-hour edition of "U.S.A.: People and Politics," profiling three of the leading cootenders for the Republican Vice-Presidential comination, PBS steals the march on the commercial networks with a prime-time warmup for the convection. Airing on WNET at 9 P.M. the program provides filmed reports on Senator Richard S. Schweicker of Pennsylvania, already chosen by Rooald Reagan as his running mate, and former Gov. John B. Connally of Texas and Senator Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, considered to be the froot-runners for the No. 2 spot if President Ford should win the party's nomination. The profiles are to be followed by an analysis of the strengths and weaknesses of the three politicians by Jonathan Moore, director of Harvard University's Institute of Politics. • .

Peter Beochley, who scored a whale of a hit with "Jaws," his shark tale, later wrote the pilot script for a proposed television series that got beached — "Jeremiah of Jacob's Neck." CBS is play-ing off the pilot show tonight at 8, but would have been merciful to the author's reputation to have let the defunct project blush unseen.

A comedy without laughs, it is built on a premise that is not only stale but also limited in its possibilities for a continuing series; a family huying a house on the Maine coast and fioding it inhabited by a nautical poltergeist (played by Kennan Wynn).

Not to be surpassed, NBC is offering three rejected

Since the networks are subjected to ridicule each fall for what they have accepted for the schedule, they perhaps deserve some credit for what they chose not to accept.

The Mother of Us All" seems to grow in stature with each passing year-or perhaps it has been a great opera all along and we are just beginning to realize the fact. This is certainly the impression left by the Santa Fe (N.M.) Opera's wonderful new production in the company's home city of a work that has always been popular with small opera groups since it was first performed at Columbia University in 1947. For some inscrutable reasoo it has never been staged be-adaptability-its beauty, vitality and wisdom would probably be just as apparent in a high school gymnaslum as on a large operatic stage. Gertrude Steio's libretto essentially tells the story of Susan B. Anthony's fight for women's suffrage, but woven through the narrative is a panoramic vision of 19thceotury American life and some of its most colorful personalities - Daniel Webster, John Adams, Lillian Russell, Ulysses S. Grant-as well as maoy everyday common folk. All this is couched in Miss turn at delivering a passionate insight that may be touching, cuttingly percep-tive, funoy or all three at Once. Mr. Thomson's score is a perfect mirror of the text, a "musical memory book," as the composer describes it, echoing the sentimental ballads, gospel hymns, marches, waltzes and ditties of the period. The opera is far more than a costalgic crazy-quilt of Americana, however. The Stein libretto constantly touches oo and illuminates son draws upon elements in the country's musical history io much the same way. It is music of great craft and sophistication disgussed by an artless naïveté, a score that holds fresh discoveries every time it is heard. The Santa Fe production, held in the company's semi-open air theater, was to the oature of a Fourth of July pageant that literally began with a bang-a fireworks display lighting up the New Mexican countryside. The entice cast then descended on stage in a series of dazzling floats designed by Robert Indiana, whose boldly colored red, white and hlue pop-art sets and picturesque costumes provided a perfect visual realization of the opera. Peter Wood's fluid direction kept the atage pictures in constant motion, without resortiog to gimmicks. "The Mother," after all, is an opera of persocality rather than incident, and at Santa Fe each iodividual emerged as a strongly drawn character vignette. The musical direction was in the secure hands of Raymond Leppard, who responded warmly to the melodic nature of the music, although he perhaps could have exercised tauter rhythmic control. Susan B. Anthony is the only extended solo role io

the opera, and much depends on her voice and physical presence to unify the action. Mignon Dunn is a commanding figure and dominated every acene, even if her acting tended to be a trifle stiff and conventionally operatic. Miss Dunn has a massive and powerful mezzo-soprano that was occasionally hard pressed to achieve the dynamic and coloristic effects in what is obviously a soprann part, but on the whole she created a sympathetic and forceful persocality.

The rest of the large cast was never less than firstclass, most particularly Philip Booth as a sermonizing Daniel Webster, James Atherton as the pathetically bemused Jo the loiterer, Ashley Putnam as the giddy Angel More (a role she performed entirely on roller skates and most gracefully, too), and William Lewis as a fidgety, uptight John Adams. In short, a great American opera has finally received the kind of excitiog and imaginative major production that it has always deserved.

Sounds serious, almost for-bidding. Not exactly the ideal weekend spot. But tomorrow and every Saturday through the end of August, the public is invited to visit Brookhaven National Laboratory's 5,000-acre campus, picnic on its grounds, roam through a nuclear reactor, try out a pair of mechanical hands and find out through exhibits, films and lectures, what goes on at Brookhaven—one of the nation's leading scientific research laboratories.

"Fine," ono visitor whis-pered to tho tour guide, "but where do you make the bombs?"

They don't make bombs at Brookhaven and oever did. But since the laboratory is federally funded (though academically run), many people think that something dangerous and secretive goes on there.

The Saturday aummer tours were set up, in part, to dispel that notion. The tours are free and leave every half-hour between 10 A.M. and 4 P.M. from Brookhaven's modern Berkner Hall. The hall, incidentally, has a cafe-teria, open until 2 in the afternoon. Visitors are also welcome to bring their own lunches and picnic on the grounds.

15-Minute Film

The tour begins with a 15minute film about the oceanographic, medical, biological and molecular re-search that is done at the laboratory. After the film, the first leg of a half-hour circuit of Brookhaveo by bus begins. in nearby Westhampton Beach.

Nestled between the majestic Atlantic and tranguil Moriches Bay, Yardarm Beach II represents the final phase of the Condominium Resort on the Dunes.

In less than one year, tha entire first phase of this complex has been nearly sold out. Now, wa are opening the second and laat phase. And many believe we have saved our best for last!

Here, you can relax completely. All exferior maintenance is in the hands of a professional staff. So, you'll have more time to spend on the broad, 600-foot wide private beach, perfecting your backhand on one of our three tennis courts, or basking on one of the inviting unplazes that surround our two swimming pools.

Here, listening to the sound of the surf and the cry of the guils, you'll be able to sit on your.private terrace and watch season after season of spectacular sunsets over the sparkling bay.

This condominium was designed to blend with the dune and drifting cloud. Yet, beneath the natural textured wood is a core of rock-solid concrete and steel.

Need more incentive? Then, consider the tax advantages and the savings. For little more than the price of a season's rental, you can own your year-round place in m. But only if you hurry.

SUNDAY STROLLING

Two months ago, the Municipal Art Society and the Department of Cultural Affairs instituted Sunday walking tours for sidewalk explorers. This week, two tours leave at 2 P.M. One goes through the Broadway theater district and leaves from outside the Uris Theater, on 51st Street west of Broadway. The stroll lasts about two hours, and the guide will speak about the architectural and historical aspects of the stage bouses (from the outside only) and will tell about proposals to develop the Times Square area, too. At the same timo a downtown tour steps off from City Hall Park, at Broadway and Warren Street, for an orbit of the area that embraces the court-studded Civic Center, the South Street Seaport Museum and the old. 'oewspaper row" oo Park Row and Nassau Street. No reservations needed. Admission: $3. Information: 586-4763.

Contemplating Retirement at 82?

The Labor Scene

George Meany

Age has not lessened his political dexterity

By A. H. RASKIN

Except for one hrief interruption early on, this country's labor movement has known only three top leaders io the 90 years since the formation of the old American Federation of Labor. Two of the federation chiefs, Samuel Gompers and William Green, died ripe in years, still clinging to their scepters.

Until recently almost everyone in labor's upper echelon operated under the expectatloo that this "till death do us part" pat-tern would bold for their lineal heir, the seemingly indestructible George Meany, who will be marking his 82d birthday oext Monday. For the first time, bowever, the prospect is now being taken seriously that Mr. Meany will step dowo voluntarily as president of the merged American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations when his present two-year

His basic constitution remaios as rugged as ever, and he gave fresh proof of his mental agility three weeks ago by the dexterity with which he modified his own game plan on labor endorsement of Jimmy Carter to forestall ooe-upsmansbip by a "progressive" coalition made up of five A.F.L.-C.LO. unions and three independents.

The original strategy, in line with fed-eration tradition, was to defer formal en-

The reason for replecing Anaconda was obvious. The big copper company, which has experienced earnings problems in recent years, is 27 percent owned by Atlantic Richfield and 18.6 percent owned by the Crane Compa-ny. A merger into Atlantic Richfield is pending.

But wby substitute 3M? Contrary to the implications conveyed by its name, it is not a mining company. Its biggest business is in graphic systems—copying machines end supplies, microfilm equipment and the like. Among other things, 3M is families to the machines familiar to the public as the producer of Scotch - brand tape. Before the substitution, the Dow Jones Industrials included five metals issues; Alcoa, Bethlehem Steel, International Nickel, United States Steel and Anaconda. Critics suggested that this unbalanced the indicator in favor of one segment of the economy.

I've been after the Dow Jones people to put a few growth stocks in the Dow to make It more representa-tive," sald Robert H. Stovall, director of investment policy for Reynolds Securities and 20-year follower of the industrial average.

He described the substitu-

But he and other analysts stressed a more significant point: that the Dow is structured in such a way that bigber priced stocks tend to

"A stock in the 60's is obviously going to bave more influence than a stock in the 20's," Mr. Bernstein said. He suggested that the also potential for upward movement in 3M was greater than in Anaconda, reflecting the merger situation.

nificant movements in Atlantic Richfield and Aneconda shares are unlikely, pending completion of the merger, although the two issues will move in tandem reflecting the terms of the deal. Thus, if Anaconda had remained in the Dow until the merger in September or later, the Dow's movements would have been more sluggish.

Three M, on the other hand, trades with no such artificial constraints, and its greater exposure, now that it is one of the 30 Dow Jones blue chips, could make it more attractive to some investors. Thus, its volatility may be accentuated over the near

The exposure that this will give Triple M is fantas-tic," said Ralph Acampora of Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Company. "Now it should be more attractive, more respectable, because it's on the Dow.'

As for why 3M was chosen, nobody at Dow Jones & Company could be found with the answer. "We don't know and the person responsible for that is out on vacation," said one of the six persons reached at the company.

through inexperience and never produce again. One who basn't foundered is Robert K. Shaye, a 37-year-old New York film distributor who believes in the old technique of learning business methods first and then becoming a producer.

Ever since he left his job at the Museum of Modern Art - he catalogued old movie stills and discouraged fervent fans of Betty Hutton who tried to walk away with the inventory - he has been building a distribution company to serve as e base for film production. His New Line Cineme at 853 Broadway is now profitable, having earned in the "low six figures" in 1975 through the distribution of mass-market films with specialty appeal, such es the karate-packed "Street Fighter" and the more artistic "Seduction of Mimi" by Lina Wertmüller.

Business Instincts Help

From the beginning be has wanted to make his own films, but he is now convinced that his business instincts bave helped him get the right start after some problems and have taught him that art and profits are not always competible.

In an interview, Mr. Sheye commented:

"From the beginning my plan was to become a producer. I took men like Samuel Goldwyn and Irving Thalberg as idols because they never forgot that they were in business to make a profit.

"Walking around Beverly Hills today, you find too many aspiring producers in suede outfits, driving leased Mercedes cars and speaking of eppointments with Dino (DiLaurentiis) and Bobby (Evans) [both mejor producers]. They heven't earned a dime et their chosen profession in years.

"In my opinion, the reason they don't make any money is thet they are too busy playing the role with a dog-eared script in their hands and promising to deliver top stars when they can't even pay their telephone bills. "Frankly, I couldn't bear the thought of spending a substantial part of my professional life doing the Hollywood minuet. Some people have said that starting a distribution company is doing it the hard wey. They are right. But it gives one e base of knowledge, and, if you're successful, financial security. My way provides the wherewithal and independence to do the things you really want to do ...'

In the beginning, Mr. Sheye became a producer because It was the only way he could bope for the inde-pendence he sought. A sbort film he produced and directed had shared first prize in a contest sponsored by the American Society of Cinematologists. Category: Best film by an American director under 25. He did it at age 24 while a senior at Columbia University Law School. The film, called "Image", was purchased by the Museum of Modern Art for its permanent film archive and soon after thet be was hired by the museum.

The film concerned a girl standing next to a life-sized

Don Durgin's rise to prom-inence in radio and television began when he was named head of the American Broadcasting Companies radio network at the age of 32. He joined the National Broad-casting Company in 1949 and advanced to president of the NBC-TV network and later

When Mr. Durgin came to McCaffrey & McCall, it was, in a sense, a return to the agency world, since bis first job after New York Univer-sity Law School was with Foote, Cooe & Belding. At McCaffrey & McCall, be con-tinued as management supertinued as management super-visor on the Exxon account even after his promotion to the presidency and helped to 93.20 479.00 87.40 increase its annual billings from $15 million to $20 million.

The clients and staff of the agency were informed about Mr. Durgin's departure yesterday by Mr. McCall, who interrupted his vacation to pass the word. According to Mr. Goss. Mr. McCall will continue on vacation until Sept. 1. Uotil be returns, the agency will be run by its vice chairman, Michael J.

Manning, and its four executive vice presidents-George R. Newall, Thomas G. Yobe, Margaret G. Wasley and Mr. Goss.

Rumors circulated soon after Mr. Durgin's departure became known that Mrs.

The Magazine Publishers Association, in ao effort to attract more advertising dollars to the medium it loves best, will begin a campaing of its own next month aimed at the top management of clients and agencies. The ads, which were announced yesterday, will run, of course, in magazines—both in leading consumer and busioess megazines and in advertisiog trade publications. The consumer magazines will donate the space, while the trade books will be paid. The theme of the campaign-prepared by the associa-tion's new agency. Warren Pfaff Inc.—is that heavy magazioe readers and light TV viewers, called the magazioe imperatives, cannot be reached through television alone. In an approach similar to that used by some individual maga-zines in their advertising, the M.P.A. ad says: 'TV or not TV isn't the question. And magazines and only magazines isn't the answer."

Stephen E. Kelly, president of the association, while observing that its previous major campaign ended in 1968, said that the present goal was to increase magazines' share of the advertising market. Magazines received 9.5 percect of national advertising last year, compared with 25.8 perceot for televisioo, 7.9 percent for oewspapers and 3.5 percent for radio.

"We are hopeful that advertisers will be alerted to what is now fact-thet you can't do it all in televisioo," Mr. Kelley said. Everyone on the elert now.

Revision in Investments

For the second time this year, the Television Bureau executive vice president of NBC. of Advertising bas had to re-vise its 1976 estimates of television advertiser investments. It's oot ao unhappy task, since the revision is upward.

unlucky. Even the race tracks are wary of what used to be considered perfect currency for the small-time bettor.

"We get them," said Frank Deniega, who works in the parimutuel office at the Sara-toga Race Track, "but we take them out of circulation. It's much easier for our clerks to work with singles." 400 Million Billa

On April 13, Thomas Jefferson'a birthday, the Treasury issued 255 million $2 bills a Gilbert Stuart portrait of Jefferson adorns the front of the new bill, just as it did the old one. On July 4, 145 million more were iasued, for a total of 400 million. Treasury officials said 400 million twos would be released each year for the forseeable future. The intent, they explained, was to halve the number of dollar bills in circulation, thereby cutting printing aod bandling costs by up to $8 million a

The new bill ran into trouble almost immediately. Where the pre-1966 aeries had a picture of Jefferson's home, Monticello, on the reverse side, the 1976 aeries had a rendition of John Trumbull's painting of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

6 Figures Omitted

For clarity, the bill's de-signers left out six figurea sitting oo the fringes of the Trumbull painting. Angry legislators and editorial writers from the home states of the six men demanded re-dress. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon promised that the men — George Wythe, William Whipple, System Josiah Bartlett, Thomas McLean, Philip Livingston and Thomas Lynch-would be restored in the future.

Mr. Simon said the change would be made after enough bills of the present version were in circulation to make hoarding unprofitable. Apparently, many people do not agree.

"We figure a lot of the bills are being hoarded," a Treas-ury spokesman said. "They snapped up a lot of the bills when they were first issued, and that's the last anyooe has seen of them."

Later in the day, Mr. Stein charged that three food distribution sites run by Special Programs for Americans were giving oot considerably less food than they were saving they had distributed. Food sponsors are reimbursed on the basis of the number of meals they give out.

"I haven't any knowledge of this," Mr. Mayer said. "We will send out monitors tomorrow. If there is an irregularity it will be corrected or the sites will be 'canceled."

'Mr. Stein called his news conference to dramatize a charge that the Saint Catherine of Siena School was a "phan-tom" lunch distribution point. He said that the site was listed on a State Department of Education roster as an active distribution point, and that Special Programs for Americans was therefore receiving mooey for lunches that it was not, in fact, giving out. "There are no lunches being served at this site because the site was closed three weeks ago," Mr. Mayer said. He produced a copy of a letter to the State Department of Education dated July 23 that said the site would be closed on July 26. .Mr. Mayer also showed re-
